Ex-President Says He Would Do Same Thing Again

MISS GOULD IS BRIDE OF SHEPARD

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Miss Helen Miller Gould was married at 12:30 o'clock today to Finley J. Shepard, assistant to the president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

The simply ceremony which united one of the wealthiest and best loved women in America to a hard working, plain American business man took place in the summer home of the bride at Lyndhurst, two miles outside this famous old Hudson River town.

Tarrytown, alluring with excitement for weeks, was beside itself with pride today. The marriage of Miss Gould was one of the most notable events that ever took place here. The cold-weather season, crowded with exciting people when many of the guests resulted here in private cars, attached to the 12:03 train. Others came by automobile.

The ceremony was performed on the minute. About seventy-five guests witnessed it. The keynote of the whole event was simplicity.

The marriage service took place in the southwest parlor of the house, from the windows of which could be caught a glimpse of the gleaming waters of the Hudson River. The Rev. Daniel Russell, pastor of the Irvington Presbyterian Church, spoke the words that joined the couple in wedlock. From the time the bridal couple stepped into the room until the ceremony was over was a period of about fifteen minutes.

Miss Gould and Mr. Shepard stood beneath a bower of roses, smilax and palms. About the palms were knotted bows of white satin ribbon. Miss Gould entered the room from the main stairway. She was accompanied by her brother, George J. Gould. Immediately behind her walked her two young nieces, Dorothy Gould and Helen Gould, the daughters of Frank J. Gould, and great favorites of the bride.

Meeting the bridegroom and his brother, who acted as best man, the party walked slowly to a position in front of the bay window. The ceremony had been rehearsed so everything went smoothly and in order.

Miss Gould handled her bridal bouquet of orange blossoms to Miss Dorothy Gould, Dorothy's sister, Helen, attended the train of the bride's dress. The small Prince Charles de Sagan, the four-year-old son of the Duc and Duchesse de Talleyrand (the Duchesse was formerly Anna Gould) officiated as a page. All the children were dressed in white.

Dr. Russell read the marriage service in a clear, distinct voice and the responses of both Miss Gould and Mr. Shepard were in tones that could be heard by all the guests. As the bridal party crossed the floor the orchestra played the wedding march from "Lohengrin" and as the ceremony proceeded Handel's "Largo" was rendered.

The handsome appearance of the bride was the cause of pleasant comment by the guests. They declared that Helen Gould had never looked so beautiful and so happy in her life as she did when she stood beside her manly looking husband when the short marriage ceremony was concluded.

The wedding gown of Miss Gould was enthusiastically praised. It was heavy white satin, with a court train four feet long and with long sleeves of the satin. The neck of the bridal dress is cut slightly low, V shape, and edged with a band of pearls.

The dress is completely covered with beautifully draped old rose point and chicken lace. The wedding veil of similar beautiful and costly lace, the gift of the Duchess de Talleyrand, the sister of Mrs.

Governor Foss Is Still Considering King Pardon Case

Governor Foss did not refer the case of Cardenia F. King to the pardoning committee of the executive council when that body met today.

Inquiry at the executive chambers brought forth the information that Governor Foss wants more time to consider the asking of a pardon or a parole for King, who is under a fourteen-year sentence to Deer Island for embezzlement and larceny in stock transactions.

The pardon committee will meet again next Wednesday. Governor Foss is still going over the papers and petitions in the King case.

There are two avenues open to Governor Foss in liberating the former Boston financier. One is to ask a pardon for King and the other is to secure his release on a parole. The Governor has been assured by legal authorities that he has a right to follow the latter course.

WaterWagon Breaks Down—And Here It Is Only January 22

The Water Wagon, only twenty-two days out from New Year, broke down early today on Washington street, right in front of the Old State House.

Lest some Bostonians, who have been watching their new resolutions with hopeful grip, should become discouraged, it may be stated that this was a municipal vehicle, watering cart No. 2 of Division 5 of the Sanitary Department.

Its front axle broke under the weight of water, not under any load of riders. The only man aboard at the time was the regular driver, and he has a steady job there.

The crippled wagon lay sprawled in the street for a while, but was hauled away for repairs before the incoming suburbanites should see it and fall from grace.

Asquith Denounced as 'Liar' and 'Traitor' In Suffrage Debate

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Cries of "Liar," "Traitor" and "Treason" were heard in the House of Commons this afternoon when Premier Asquith announced that an amendment granting votes to women would not be made to the franchise bill. Any bill granting the vote to women, said Premier Asquith, would have to stand by itself and would be debated without closure or "guillotine."

Mr. Hunt, a member of the Commons, made a verbal attack upon the Premier, which was later described as disgraceful and disorderly by Speaker Lowther. Hunt did not desist until pulled into his seat by fellow members, who held their hands over his mouth.

Widow's Plea Saves Her from Jail Term; She Gets a Collection

Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, charged with shoplifting, pleaded her age, her motherhood and her widowhood, when asking Judge Bennett for mercy in the Boston Municipal Court today.

The testimony against her was in. The defendant said to Judge Bennett earnestly:

This is my first time in court, Judge. I am sixty-two years old. I am the mother of nine children. My husband is dead. I don't want to go to jail, Judge.

Judge Bennett put her on probation and court attaches were so sorry for Mrs. Sullivan that they took up a collection to help her.

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, Jan. 22.—Vast quantities of ashes and smoke are pouring from the crater of Mount Colima. It is reported that ashes are falling at Sicillo, 600 miles away.

GIVES UP CAREER FOR LOVE

The story of how David Hillhouse Buel, former president of Georgetown University, Yale graduate and son of General Buel of Civil War fame, withdrew from the social order in order that he might marry Miss Katherine Frances Powers, of East Concord street, in the South End, became known in Boston today. The bride was well known in this city.

By his marriage, the main reasons for ambition, studies, career—everything. By marrying he automatically divorces himself from the church.

In the story of Mr. Buel's courtship of Miss Powers is the romance of hours spent on the seashore at Allerton, in Hull, where the bride spent her Summers with her father, Edward Powers, a well to do Boston mason and contractor, and her five sisters. It came on today that the couple had wedded quietly in New York last month.

Father Gasson's Statement.

Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., President of Boston College, discussing the case today said:

The family of the young woman who married Buel feels terribly hurt over the occurrence, as do the members of the priesthood. The first great obstacle, to put it mildly, that Buel made was to make a wrong explanation to the father superior at Washington in order to obtain permission to travel. Just what he told, we do not know, but of course he did not tell the real reason.

He came to Boston and met the young woman at Allerton. How often he came here and the details of the courtship are all a mystery to us. But we know that it was at Allerton that he met the young woman, and there the courtship took place without any one's knowledge outside of themselves.

The woman's family was a very fine woman and a staunch Catholic. She brought up her children as strict Catholics, and naturally the marriage of her daughter to Buel is a great blow to her.

I do not know much about Buel. He is the son of General Buel of Civil War fame. He left the church a few months ago and gave no reason for it. We later learned of his marriage.

Marriage Surprised Friends.

The bride was well known and popular in the South End, and in the Summering colony at Allerton. She was a member of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Harrison avenue and East Concord street. The news of her marriage came as a shock to her friends. Those who were associated with her in church work showed the keenest surprise and said they could hardly credit the news.

It was said Miss Powers had known Mr. Buel since she was ten or twelve years of age, several months ago her mother died, leaving an estate valued at more than $10,000. Mr. Powers with her sisters became the central figures in a court fight over the inheritance. This resulted in the family becoming estranged. Later Miss Powers lived with two older sisters, while the three other sisters lived with their father in the East Concord street home.

Friends of Mr. Buel's bride said the case was deeply pathetic and they could not feel the profoundest sympathy for her, it being explained that she gave up her faith and church affiliations when she married him.

News of the wedding and the remarkable story behind it created a stir in Catholic church and Yale University circles today. Mr. Buel is one of the leading clerics in the East, including New England. He was at one time connected with Holy Cross College at Worcester.

Lost--A Cold Wave; Summerish Weather Still in Our Midst

LOST, STRAYED OR STOLEN.

One cold wave belonging to Boston and New England. Finder will please notify the Weather Bureau in the Federal Building.

Boston's spell of near-summerish weather is mid-Winter is going to stick around a while. Sunny and nice as it is today, Meteorologist Forecaster Smith says it will be still warmer tomorrow. Even while he was making his prediction the mercury was doing upward today, right in the face of the promised "cold wave" which didn't arrive.

Officially the "warm wave" is going to stay as long as the weather vanes keep pointing in a southerly direction. Forecaster Smith explains that the high pressure to the south of New England is responsible for the unusual weather. Just now nothing is in sight save generally pleasant weather, which is mighty comforting, considering the Cool Trust and other offshoots of stern realities of life.

The Summer brand of weather prevailed throughout the country today, save in the Northwest, where conditions were threatening.

TWO CAPTURED FOR ATTEMPT TO ROB FUR STORE

After a chase through Tremont, Boylston and Tamworth streets today, in which two policemen and a big crowd of shoppers participated, two men were captured and locked up at the Lagrange street station charged with attempting to steal furs at the store of Kaiser Brothers, at No. 170 Tremont street. An employe of the store noticed crossing policeman John T. Bourque of the queer actions of the men who were accompanied by a woman. As the officer approached the trio fled, the woman becoming lost in the crowd they collected.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall were taken down from the fourth floor by firemen on ladders.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kavanaugh and their guest, Mrs. Albert McIntyre of Chelsea, Mrs., were trapped in their second floor suite. When a ladder was put up Mr. Kavanaugh helped the women out the window, but stayed to get a trunk of valuable papers out, until persuaded by firemen to follow.

Captain and Mrs. William Patten, on the third floor, were saved by the ladder men.

Taken Down Ladders.

In a third-floor suite were Miss Corinne Remillard and her mother, Mrs. Ontario Remillard, who is seventy years old. When Chemical 1 dashed up Lieutenant Walter Martin saw the aged mother leaning from a front window and screaming for help. He shouted to her to wait for the ladders.

Just then Ladder 2 from Broad street (Captain William Redfield) clattered up, closely followed by Captain Al. Preble's Ladder 3. Ladders were run up and, in a jiffy, Mrs. Remillard and her daughter were on the ground, shivering and frightened, but safe.

In all, twelve men and women were taken down ladders, while the other tenants were saving themselves.

This was the first serious fire for the new chief, Edward E. Case since his confirmation last Monday. There was much praise for the department by the tremendous crowd which gathered. The excitement was at its height just as the factory operatives were going to work.

Overheated Boiler.

The fire was caused by an overheated boiler. The first alarm was given soon after 6 o'clock by Mrs. Patrick Condon, who smelled smoke in her room getting breakfast. The flames worked up the chimney and burst through the rooms surrounding the chimney on all four floors.

The Gladstone is divided into twenty-four small suites and nearly all received smoke or fire damage. The property is owned by Ernest W. Burd.

Mouse in Trolley Car Sends Women Leaping Onto Seats

Two lone aisle a mouse created a small stir last night on a North Station car near Dover and Washington streets today. The two screamed, bounded the car and quickly sat down. One, holding a mouse, dropped it.

The mouse ran around on the floor of the car for about a second unnoticed, but only for a second.

Three women promptly yelled: "Conductor, stop this car; we want to get off."

The conductor evidently wasn't paying any attention to the mouse or the passengers. The mouse kept on running and the women jumped on the seats and all other angles to escape the mouse.

It took about five minutes to quiet the passengers enough to name and put the mouse finally off the car.

COLONEL DEFENDS COAL DEAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, testifying today at the resumption of the hearings in the government suit against the Steel Corporation, reiterated his testimony before the Stanley committee, that by sanctioning the acquisition of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company by the Steel Corporation in 1907 he saved the country from disaster.

Judge Dickinson, one of the counsel for the government, sought to draw out from Roosevelt the admission that the Steel Corporation and its allies "hoodwinked" him and so got his O. K. to the deal that has enriched the Steel Corporation by many millions, but the Colonel backed away from the pitfall and insisted that the U. S. C. & I. deal, at the time it was made, saved banks from going to the wall.

Colonel Snaps His Finger.

Roosevelt said that during the 1907 panic men came to him and told him that the banks were heavily loaded with T. C. & I. stock, and that it was practically worthless.

Aroused by a long line of questions by Judge Dickinson, along the line of "Did you know" and "were you aware," the Colonel half arose in his seat and facing Dickinson, said:

As to all these questions you are asking me, I want to say that at that time not one thing could have been true that would have baffled me—not that much, and the Colonel snapped his fingers.

Those were panic times, when men were giving their best judgment and the whole country was depending on what they did. It was a matter of life or death to them. At that time the stock of the T. C. & I. was so worthless that it would not support itself. I was then dealing with panic in which not twenty-four hours but a single hour might have brought widespread disaster and I had to decide quickly and not to accuse.

THREATEN NEW STRIKE MONDAY ON MAINE ROAD

BANGOR, Jan. 22.—A fuel and food famine, necessitating the closing of large industries and causing business suffering all along the line, is threatened unless the strike of engineers and firemen on the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad is settled within the next forty-eight hours.

The conductors and trainmen of the road have sent an ultimatum to the officials of the road, saying that unless the road grants their demands for an increase which was made some time ago, they will go on strike next Monday.

Two of the grand officers of the Order of Railroad Conductors are expected today and the men will appeal to them for immediate action by the union on the ground that their lives are endangered by riding behind men whom they say are not experienced engineers.

Conditions in the small towns remote from the cities are especially critical. Dispatches say that at East Millinocket the supply of provisions will last only two days more. The coal supply of the Great Northern Paper Company's mill, at the same town, is so small that the mill will have to close within a week, unless more is brought in. At present, the mill is hauling its output twenty miles over rough roads to Mattawamkeag, where it is shipped by the Maine Central Railroad.

At Limestone similar conditions exist. The town has not received or sent a piece of mail through the local postoffice since Saturday, December 7. H. B. Perry of Perham took into his own hands the transportation of some of the mail which has accumulated at his office, and carried mail bags through the woods to Washburn, five miles away. He returned with the mail from that place.

The passenger service on the crippled road more nearly approached normal than at any time since the strike began. The freight service was still at a standstill, and freight cars remained on sidings with their cargoes of print paper and potatoes, while the price of the latter increased in the markets of the country.

That the railroad will be able to move some of the freight within a day or two was predicted by President Percy R. Todd, who said that the passenger service of the road is now nearly complete. The strike leaders make no claims as to the extent of operation by the road, but assert that the company is using incompetent men.

URGE UNIFORM LABOR LAWS FOR ALL THE STATES

Uniform labor legislation for all the States was urged at a hearing before the legislative committee on Federal Relations today on a resolve urging Congress to propose an amendment to the federal constitution authorizing it to regulate the hours of labor in the various States.

Representatives Sanborn and Schlapp of Lawrence argued for the measure. The former said that it is necessary to give Congress this power. He said:

"Massachusetts is handicapped by its liberal labor laws when it competes with other States which have not passed such laws.

"The time is coming when labor laws in this country must be uniform. These resolutions would be simply a suggestion to Congress, but they come from a great manufacturing State and Congress would be bound to listen to them.

FIGHT FOR 9-YEAR-OLD HUDSON CHILD IS RESUMED TODAY

The contest over May Hudson, the nine-year-old girl for the custody of whom father, mother and grand-aunt, Lucy Miner, are contending, was resumed today in the divorce court before Judge Dubuque.

In previous cross-examination J. J. Hudson, the father, said he had always looked forward to getting his child, and providing her a home.

Hudson said he desired that his child have religious training, and when counsel asked if he had ever seen a clergyman visit the home of the Miner family, he answered that he had once seen a clergyman go as far as the door, but he was told not to call again.

The father had been on the witness stand two days.

Suffragist Will Hide Pretty Face in Parade With a Veil

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—One of the marshals of the woman's suffrage parade on March 3 will be a rider who will wear the Robin Hood uniform of the other aides, but will hide her face with a thick golden veil. It is said she is a leading society girl of this city and a noted equestrienne. Her parents object to her participating in this parade. Hence the circumvention.

Mrs. Huntington Wilson, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, an exclusive society woman, has applied for a place in the procession.

Miss Crystal Eastman Benedict, said to be the most beautiful woman in Wisconsin, has entered the contest against Inez Milholland of New York, and Gladys Hinckley of Washington, for the title of the "most beautiful suffragist."

Violet Asquith, Leaving America, Criticises Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Miss Violet Asquith, daughter of the Prime Minister of England, sailed for Southampton aboard the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II., after a visit of two weeks in New York and Washington. What impressed her most were the American newspapers.

"It is audacious for a reporter to ask a woman her ideas of modern problems," said Miss Asquith just before sailing. "Whether I am a suffragette or a philanthropist concerns myself alone and such inquiries annoy me.

"No photographer would be allowed to approach the great people in England and ask them to pose for a picture. In England we permit the newspapers to glean only a little of what we are doing.

"Whether I have been suggested as the victim of William Watson's poem, 'The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue,' does not arouse me at all. I have no objection to what people say about me and I think no more of Richard Le Gallienne, who replied to Watson's poem, than I do of Watson."

Over Half-Million Spent by Candidates During the Campaign

Governor Foss spent $2,250.90 for his renomination and $5,440.08 for his election. Political committees throughout the State owe in the aggregate $41,000.50.

Miss Daly had a stage contract for the season's work, but tore the contract up and decided to try Bad Kissengen as a weight-reducing spa. She said:

"I'll starve myself nearly to death if I can get rid of thirty pounds. The weight seems to rest in one place, but I am determined to conquer it. If I were to attempt a diet in New York I should fail because the lobster palaces are irresistible.

ROOSEVELT AND COREY TESTIFY IN STEEL INQUIRY

ed by different stories that came to me.

Corey on the Stand.

"Don't you think that the Steel Corporation knew what it was doing when it took over the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company?" asked Dickinson.

"I don't think the Steel Corporation would buy a 'pig in a poke,'" flashed back the Colonel. Roosevelt concluded his testimony after a few more questions concerning the different subsidiaries of the Steel Corporation and the hearing adjourned until 2 p. m. when William Ellis Corey, former president of the Steel Corporation, took the stand.

Convinced He Was Right.

Questioned further regarding the proportion of the output of steel of this country controlled by the corporation, he said that he had been led to understand that it was originally about 60 per cent. of the total, but that this percentage had been gradually diminished.

Mr. Roosevelt emphatically declared his confidence that he acted rightly in permitting the taking over of the Tennessee Coal Company. He had been informed by experts that the company was of little value under its then control and that it was better that is should be put in the hands of those who were competent to run it.

Henry D. Brown was special commissioner; Judge Dickinson, former Secretary of War, and Henry E. Colton, representing the government, and C. A. Severance, David Reed, Jr., Richard V. Lindabury and Raymond C. Rolling represented the Steel Corporation at the hearing.

A number of letters were introduced which had been exchanged between Colonel Roosevelt, Attorney-General Bonaparte and Roosevelt's secretary. The former President identified them all.

Tells of Frick and Gary Visits.

One letter from Bonaparte to Roosevelt dated November 4, 1907, referred to a previous letter of the Colonel's in which he had referred to a visit paid him by Henry C. Frick and Judge Gary of the Steel Corporation. The report of the Bureau of Corporations, which had made an investigation of the oil trust and the Steel Corporation, was also referred to.

"Did the Bureau of Corporations report to you?" Roosevelt was asked.

"Undoubtedly. I cannot just remember as to how it reported concerning the Sherman law, but I recall that the report was favorable about the Steel Corporation and unfavorable about the Standard Oil Company, upon certain points."

There were numerous lulls during the early part of the proceedings, due to conferences held by the attorneys. During one of these, Colonel Roosevelt, grinning broadly, turned to the newspapermen and said: "Seems to be less interest in this than in the kimona strike."

More than a score of newspaper men clamored for admission to the room where the hearing was held, but after a conference with Colonel Roosevelt it was decided that only representatives of press associations would be permitted entrance.

WHY SPEED IN $40,000 RACE IS NECESSARY

BY THE CONTEST EDITOR.

The next two weeks are most important ones in the AMERICAN'S $40,000 contest.

There are two reasons why all candidates should crowd on speed—subscription-getting speed.

First—The next vote list following next Sunday's standing will be printed in the Sunday AMERICAN February 9. The polls will close for this list on Monday, February 3, at 5:30 p. m. This list will include all mail matter actually received at Contest Headquarters before that hour on that day.

Second—The February 9 vote list will be the last vote list printed before the contest closes on February 28.

The Contest Editor hoped to be able to print a vote list every Sunday until the finish, but space will not permit.

The importance of the February 9 vote list is apparent to all. It is vitally necessary for every contestant to lend every energy to secure a good rating in this final list before the contest closes.

England Not Yet Ready for National Theatre, Says Henry A. Jones

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Henry Arthur Jones, the playwright, has returned from America feeling, as he expresses it, "like his own grandson," after a surgical operation that has freed him as if by magic from a long-borne burden of ill health. Mr. Jones is greatly interested in the establishment of a national theatre in England, but his experiences in America have changed his mind somewhat on this point.

"I have been closely watching the history of America's first National Theatre, its establishment and its failure," he says, "and I think it may be a very good object lesson to us Englishmen.

"Its failure was due to the simple reason that the American public was not ready for it—did not want it. It was a 'millionaires' theatre,' not a people's theatre. And are we ready for it? Do we want it yet? Personally, I have very strong doubts on the subject.

Whiskey and Pine for Colds

Old Time Formula That Has Cured Thousands Here.

The increased use of whiskey and pine for colds is causing discussion among the medical fraternity. It is an almost infallible cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. "From your druggist get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine). Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Shake well and take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bedtime." Smaller doses to children according to age. This treatment often knocks the worst cough or cold in a day. But be sure to get only the genuine, Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine). Each half ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If your druggist does not have it in stock he will quickly get it. Don't experiment with cheap uncertain mixtures. Loyal druggists say this has had a marvelous demand for the past six years. Would you eat dried beef in preference to a juicy steak?

No! You would take the steak! The man who wants a sweet, cool, fragrant smoke, prefers plug tobacco to sliced or granulated tobacco, because plug tobacco has more flavor and fragrance.

The real tobacco flavor depends upon the natural moisture in the leaf. The only way to preserve all this flavor is to press the leaves into plug form and keep the moisture in by covering it with a natural leaf wrapper.

Tin cans, cloth bags or waxed paper packages do not keep in all the moisture of granulated tobacco. Some of the flavor departs when the moisture evaporates. The drier tobacco is the hotter it smokes—the more it bites your tongue.

With Master Workman Plug you can cut a fresh pipeful whenever you smoke and everytime will find it the freshest—sweetest—smoothest—coolest tobacco you ever stuffed into a pipe. Try it today and convince yourself. You'll say Master Workman makes a sweet pipe sweeter.

SHEPARD AND $30,000,000 BRIDE START HONEYMOON ON ESTATE

BRIDE PICTURE OF HAPPINESS AS SHE GETS SHEEPSKIN CERTIFICATE OF MARRIAGE.

Gould, fell gracefully over the full length of the gown and the train. The veil was caught with a spray of orange blossoms.

Following the ceremony the orchestra played the "Star Spangled Banner." This was in compliment of the men of the army and navy who manifested such a deep interest in the wedding.

It was a gay, happy party that proceeded to the dining room and partook of the wedding breakfast.

In the music room, and screened from sight by palms and hanging vines, was Nathan Franke's orchestra of forty pieces, which performed the following program while the guests were at breakfast:

Saint d'Amour.
Evening Song ..... Schumann
Prize Song from "Der Meistersinger" ..... Wagner
Meditation from "Thais" ..... Massenet
"On Wings of Love" ..... Mendelssohn
"Berceuse" ..... Godard
The Wedding March from "Lohengrin" ..... Wagner
"Largo" ..... Handl
Wedding March from "Midsummer Night's Dream" ..... Mendelssohn

Patriotic airs were also rendered being interspersed among the more classical selections.

"I suppose I'm the happiest man on earth," Mr. Shepard repeated over and over to his friends.

"Well, I'm just as happy as you are," was the bride's joyful rejoinder.

Girl's Sheepskin Certificate.

After the wedding Dr. Russell presented to the bride a sheepskin certificate of marriage. The border of this is green, blue and red. The lettering was done by Miss Lucille Townsend, librarian at Irvington, and the border design by Miss Helen Lewis of New York. The certificate bears this verse from the fifth chapter of Ephesians:

Let every one of you in particular so love his wife, even as himself, and the wife see that she reverence her husband.

The license had been obtained last night by Miss Gould and Mr. Shepard from Robert Desmond, clerk of the town of Greatburg. They motored to his home at Harney Park, Tarrytown, Mr. Shepard gave his name as Finley Johnson Shepard and his age as 44. There is but two months difference in the ages of Mr. Shepard and his bride, he being the younger.

Duke and Duchess There.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Drexel, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. John Terry, Miss Virginia Allen and Miss Sophie Nichols.

Duc and Duchess Tallyrand-Perigorde, their infant son, Prince Helie De Sagan, motored to Tarrytown yesterday from Castle Gould, Howard Gould's home on Long Island, and spent the night at Lyndhurst.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gould came with their children from Lakewood. Mrs. Edward Shaw and Miss Anna Talcott, the latter, a cousin of the bride, were also guests at Lyndhurst over night.

Mrs. Anthony Drexel, Jr., who was formerly Marjorie Gould, attended the wedding, despite an attack of illness which threatened to keep her at home. She arrived in an automobile, propped up with pillows.

Among the other guests who came by special train and automobile were Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Walker, Mr. and Mrs Henry P. Perpal, Henry P. Perpal, Jr., E. P. Pryor, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Darlington, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mitchell McCracken, Miss Marguerite Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Northrup and Miss Estelle Hartshorn.

Headed by superintendent Robbie and his wife, fifteen servants employed on the Lyndhurst estate witnessed the ceremony from the long hallway outside the drawing room.

A buffet luncheon was served after the ceremony. Mrs. Shepard distributed dainty little heart-shaped cake boxes to each guest. The boxes contained the entwined initials of the bride and groom, set off by sprays of lilies of the valley.

Interest was afforded to the drawing room in which the ceremony occurred. It was there that George Jay Gould, the bride's brother and Miss Edith Kingdon were married and it was there that the children of Frank Gould were christened.

The floral decorations of Lyndhurst were confined to the first floor and were inexpensive as compared to those employed at recent marriages of America's rich daughters. Not more than $5000 was spent. The total, however, would have been larger had not the Gould conservatories supplied the palms and orchids.

Bride Planned Decorations.

When the New York decorators arrived with a van filled with palmost, smilax, roses and carnations they found the Gould home as splendid-spun as the servants could make it. For days they had been removing such particles of dust as will settle upon furniture and polished floors even on the heights of Tarrytown, and the gardeners had been combing the great lawns until they had come to resemble vast fields of brownish gray velvet.

If the decorations were not particularly elaborate, they were found to be in most excellent taste, for the bride herself was the director. The entire scheme was most carefully worked out and is remarkable for its artistic conception.

The foyer hall, opening from the porte cochere of gray stone, wreathed in smilax, with clusters of American beauty roses and a sprinkling of white carnations, the somber green. The hall proper, which leads to the southwest parlor overlook.

During the forenoon Miss Gould was busy supervising the final setting, in which the forty-five employes of the estate seemed to vie in carrying out her wishes to the best effect. Often Miss Gould took complete charge of things herself.

When some relatives arrived, she handled their baggage, notwithstanding the protest of a servant. She was in the best of spirits, with gifts and congratulatory telegrams descending upon her up to the very hour of the wedding at noon.

Ing the brief expense of the Hudson, had the same general effect.

The parlor itself, where the ceremony was performed, was banked with cloud palms and festooned with roses of white and red. Vases of the same flowers were set at intervals, giving the room the appearance of a conservatory from the improvised altar to the stairway in the main hall were stretched ribbons, forming a pathway for the bridal party, and the balustrade of the stairway was smothered in palmost until it resembled an enormous snake-like piece of delicate green.

Music Room Resplendent.

The music room, where Nahan Franke's orchestra of forty was hidden in an ever-glade of palms, was resplendent with roses in vases, while the dining room was done in smilax, roses and asparagus sprays. The effect was both dainty and artistic.

Mrs. Ernest Sage, adviser and intimate friend of Miss Gould, was not present at the ceremony. Her gift, a diamond hat pin with 200 stones, valued at $10,000, was received yesterday. Another gift, an onyx pedestal bearing a figure of Pilgrim was from Howard Gould. The statesman at the town house sent a silver tea tray, and the workmen at Lyndhurst a loving cup.

The hundreds of handsome wedding gifts, which amount in value to a good six fortune, were displayed in the art gallery on the second floor and guarded by Pinkerton detectives.

Among the beautiful presents were: A tall silver loving cup from the enlisted men and officers of the Atlantic reserve fleet, this gift coming from the Philadelphia Navy Yard. The initials H. M. G. done in rope lettering.

A loving cup from the commander-in-chief and officers of the United States Atlantic fleet.

A silver loving cup from the soldiers of Fort Monroe, Va.

A silver loving cup on standard from the enlisted men of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, Governor's Island.

From the employes at Lyndhurst, a silver centre piece.

Gold loving cup from the enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps, with inscription.

Those given by Miss Gould to the hospital

A miniature solid gold cot, a replica of camp at Montauk Point during the Spanish-American war, by soldiers of Fort Ethan Allen, Vt.

A silver loving cup with an engraved automobile boat, from the officers and men of the submarine fleet station at Newport, R. I.

A handsome rope of pearls from her brother, George Jay Gould.

A gorgeous corsage ornament of diamonds and pearls from Frank J. Gould.

A rare art treasure from Howard Gould.

A set of tapestries from Edwin Gould.

A silver dish from the 57 girls of Miss Gould's sewing school, who contributed ten cents each.

A gold flower bowl from the enlisted men of the Atlantic squadron

To Stay Week at Lyndhurst.

While Mr. Shepard would not give out the plans for the wedding trip, Miss Gould herself sent word that the first week would be spent at Lyndhurst. The couple will then go to New York, where they will remain until February, when they will sail for an extended tour abroad.

Miss Gould says she does not like to pose for photographs. She does not, however, object to an occasional snapshot. On the occasion of this snapshot she did object, as is shown by her attempt to conceal her face.

Simplicity Marks Wedding of Railroad Man to Woman Noted for Good Works.

Mr. Shepard and Miss Gould aroused more national interest than any other similar announcement for a long time. Miss Gould has endeared herself to the people by her many charities. She has assisted many worthy causes not only with her purse but through actual labor.

She and Mr. Shepard were first thrown together when a special train upon which both were passengers was held up by a railroad wreck. Mr. Shepard's masterly method of taking charge of the situation attracted Miss Gould to him and in turn, her whole-hearted labors in behalf of the wounded touched Mr. Shepard's heart. From that meeting mutual affection grew rapidly.

Mr. Shepard is a New Englander. His father is dead and his mother is a paralytic. She could not attend today's wedding.

In front of the main entrance to Lyndhurst stands a nine hundred pound, thirteen-inch shell presented to Miss Gould by the men of the navy immediately after the Spanish war. The shell had been polished to shining brilliancy by Timothy Dowd and George Sonntag, two of the oldest employes on the estate. Sonntag has been employed at Lyndhurst for forty-five years and Dowd for forty years. Both were keenly interested in the wedding.

"Everyone of us on the estate would lay down his life for Miss Gould," said Sonntag. "She is the finest lady in the land. It will be strange for us who have known her so long to call her Mrs. Shepard."

WANT A MANSION AND 30 BATHROOMS? SEE MRS. MACVEAGH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—TO RENT—A house with thirty bathrooms.

Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, built a mansion in Sixteenth street as a Christmas present to him. A Democratic administration is coming in, and Mrs. MacVeagh wishes to lease the house, which cost $1,000,000, it is said.

Any wealthy Democratic leader with many camp followers would be delighted with the house. In a pinch he could stow his supporters in the bathtubs of a night. The bath rooms, lined and paved with marble, are larger than ordinary ball bedrooms. Of course, there are other rooms in the house, some exact reproductions of chambers in French chateaux and Italian palaces.

CORBETT URGES BILL TO REMIT TAX ON OPERA

Joseph J. Corbett, corporation counsel of Boston, argued before the Legislative Committee on cities today for Mayor Fitzgerald's bill to permit the city of Boston to appropriate for the maintenance of the Boston Opera House the amount of the real estate tax assessed upon that property each year. No opposition appeared.

"The erection of the Opera House," said Judge Corbett has resulted in greatly increasing the valuation of property in that section, and as a result the city has gained considerable in the way of additional taxation.

"The Opera House is a semi-educational institution, and it would only be fair for the city to give back to it the amount of the real estate tax collected each year as the city's contribution toward its maintenance.

"The venture hasn't been altogether successful, financially, and aid is required. Moreover, President Taft will give a hearing to some prominent Jews opposing its passage.

"CASCARETS" BEST BOWEL CLEANSER

No Biliousness, Headache, Sick, Sour Stomach, Coated Tongue or Constipation.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

OLIVE Tablets OIL the Bowels

A Physician's Substitute for Dangerous Calomel.

When you feel that your liver and bowels need help take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Substitute for Calomel. Calomel is effective, but dangerous—causing bad after-effects.

Olive Tablets are especially made to take the place of Calomel. Dr. Edwards' formula has been Calomel's foe. He saw its dangers and its disadvantages in 17 years' practice, treating patients for all kinds of liver and bowel complaints. In his efforts to do without Calomel he developed his now famous little olive-oil-colored tablets. Olive Tablets are mild but effective. Safe and sure. Pleasant to take, but unfailing in results.

Olive Tablets oil the bowels just enough to start Nature's own action, but they tone up the liver at the same time. They are made from a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

If you want to regain that feeling of vigorous buoyancy and clear thought take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They work while you sleep. Use them for a week. Only a vacation, 10 and 25 cents per box. The Olive Tablet Co., Columbus, O.

YOUR SOUR, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH WILL FEEL FINE IN FIVE MINUTES

"Really does" put bad stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that—just that—makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps, you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated; your insides filled with bile and indigestible waste, remember the moment Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness.

NAME GUARDIAN FOR MRS. KEY OF BEACON STREET

Mrs. Frances Dore (Jones) Key of No. 473 Beacon street, member of the Country Club, wealthy and connected with the celebrated Post family of Manhattan, consented before Judge Robert Grant of Suffolk Probate Court today to the appointment of a temporary guardian over herself.

Judge Grant thereupon appointed William H. Dunbar of Cambridge to that office. Mr. Dunbar had petitioned for himself or some other person to be named as permanent guardian over Mrs. Key, who is described by alienists as an apparent paranoiac.

Mrs. Key had opposed the appointment of a guardian, but, after two more alienists had testified, Mrs. Key consented.

Mrs. Key was surrounded by an attentive group of relatives and friends, including members of the Post family. It was stated to the court that New York cousins are ready to take Mrs. Key to their home for the present. Among Mrs. Key's cousins are Regis Henry Post of New York, former Governor of Porto Rico, and W. K. Post, a Manhattan attorney. But whether these the cousins who are to take Mrs. Key to New York was not given out.

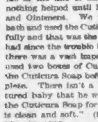
BABY DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

Pimples Filled with Watery Matter. Crust Formed. Cried Continually. Thought He Would Die. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Cure Complete.



13 Union St., Westfield, Mass.—"My baby boy was ten nine days old when a rash spread over his entire body which beamed like fire. The rash took the form of pimples which filled with a watery matter and when these broke a crust formed. The baby was very disfigured. It proved to be the worst form of eczema. Even his mouth and gums were affected. He cried continually; the pain and loss of sleep made him lose in weight and I surely thought my baby would die.

"I used everything anyone suggested to me in the line of nurses and washes, but nothing helped until I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. We made a warm soapy bath and used the Cuticura Ointment plentifully and that was the first peaceful sleep he had since the trouble began. In three days there was a real improvement, and I only used two boxes of Cuticura Ointment with the Cuticura Soap before the cure was complete. There isn't a trace of the skin-tortured baby that he was, so I kept on using the Cuticura Soap for his bath and his skin is clean and soft." (Signed) Mrs. Krusky, May 16, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

From Trenton Mr. Harlow will go direct to Washington to carry out his duty as messenger of the Massachusetts Electoral College. While in the capital city he will also make arrangements for the accommodation of Governor Foss and his staff during the inaugural exercises at Washington.

The Governor, it is understood, will be escorted on that occasion by three Massachusetts military regiments, one of which will be the sea coast artillery.

FIRST MACKEREL OF 1913 SEASON CAUGHT

GLOUCESTER, Jan. 22.—One gill netter here made a haul of 2,000 pounds of mixed fish. In the haul was a three and one-half-p. nd mackerel, easily the first of the 1913 season. There was speculation whether this was the first arrival from Southern waters, or was one that has wintered on Jeffries Bank, where the net was hauled.

Discolored, Wrinkled Skin Easily Renovated

(From the Woman Beautiful.)

Since brown or yellow, over-red or blotchy complexions are decidedly heighteners. The average woman cannot understand why so many continue to wear them. Surely every woman has heard of mercolized wax. This I know—from my own and others' experience—will positively banish every unsightly tint. The way really takes out a bad complexion. It gradually, painlessly absorbs the thin layer of surface skin with all its defects, as chaps, liver spots, pimples, freckles, blackheads. Just as gradually the retarded skin is restored by the clear, white, youthful skin underneath. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store, is applied nightly like cold cream and rinsed mornings with warm water. One ounce will produce the healing girlish complexion in less than a fortnight. I can't understand, either, why folks will be bothered with wrinkles, since the famous ancient recipe for making the wrinkles disappear—a piece of powdered saxolite dissolved in a half pint witch hazel—makes a wash lotion that will quickly efface every line, even the deepest. —Advertisement.

WOMEN SAVE 20 CHILDREN IN WEST END FIRE

Through the coolness of two women, both clasping babies, a panic was averted during a fire this afternoon in the five-story tenement building at the corner of Green and Hale streets, West End. The two women were Mrs. H. Bachner and Mrs. Leonard Casara, who guided about twenty children from the upper floors through the smoke to the street and safety.

While Miss Rebecca Marcus was talking with another clerk in the Bachner store on the street floor, she saw a streak of flame shoot up through the board partition. She went to the telephone and notified the headquarters. In the meantime a passerby had seen smoke coming from the basement windows. He rang in an alarm from Box 20.

On the second floor Mrs. Bachner and her six children were eating dinner when the rooms began to fill with smoke. Mrs. Bachner called to her neighbor above and with her children ahead of her and the youngest in her arms, she marched them to the street.

Mrs. Leonard Casara with her husband and baby, who live on the third floor, followed and helped to guide children from the floor above to the street. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carline, who live on the same floor, were driven from their dinner table by the smoke.

The fourth floor is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Leo Barbera and six children. The youngest, a child of a few months, was carried out in its father's arms and slept all through the excitement. Only a shovel with his wife and baby were the last to reach the street.

COTTON MILL MEN FIGHT TARIFF CUT AT OPEN HEARING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Opening up a spirited discussion about the employment of child labor under harassing conditions, the cotton schedule of the tariff was taken up by the House Ways and Means Committee today. A great array of manufacturers representing mills in the North and South were on hand to protest against lowering duties on cotton goods below the level of the Payne tariff law. The witnesses were prepared for a stiff grilling by the committee on the question of child labor. Several members of the committee have been studying conditions, particularly in the Southern cotton mills, to get at the truth of ugly charges which have been made about labor conditions. The Underwood cotton bill which passed the House last Summer provides a general reduction of duties in the schedule from about 47 per cent. to 25 per cent., and the committee is not disposed to put any of the duties above the level of the Underwood bill.

SULTAN READY TO GIVE UP ADRIANOPLE

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Dispatches to the Associated Press from Constantinople and Vienna say that the Porte has decided to cede Adrianople to the allies, following the advice of the Powers' note. It was said the National Assembly urged the step and the ministry acquiesced. There was no verification in diplomatic circles.

The fortress of Adrianople has been the chief stumbling block in the conclusion of peace terms between the allies and the Turks. The Powers, in a note to the Porte, had advised the surrender of Adrianople.

PRESIDENT TAFT HAS TRAVELED 113,659 MILES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—When President Taft stepped down from his private car on his recent return from New Haven, the total mileage of his travels in his four years in the White House reached 113,659—enough to take him 4½ times around the world, or an average of about seventy-five miles for every day he has been President. The total is exclusive of the hundreds of miles the President has traveled by motor in every part of the country, his trips through cities and his tours about Washington and in the vicinity of Beverly.

Including the three short journeys to be taken before March 4, Mr. Taft will have traveled in his term about 125,000 miles, or five times the distance around the earth at the equator.

Mr. Taft has made about 25,000 miles of the total on his two "swings around the circle." He has visited every State in the Union with the exception of Oklahoma and North Dakota, and has stood as near the four corners of the country as it is possible for a man to get.

Two trips to the Panama Canal Zone have swelled the President's mileage considerably, but it was on trips to New York, to Boston and to Beverly, and to Cincinnati that the miles that made the big total were rolled up at their fastest clip. Every Winter Mr. Taft has made visit after visit to New York, and in Summer, when Congress persisted in staying in session, he frequently commuted between Washington and Beverly like a Brooklyn boy works in New York.

He has been on the road more than 200 days and nights.

His allowance of $2,000 a year for traveling expenses has been used each year.

RUSSELL CASE HEARERS MUST STOP LAUGHING

The Russell will hearing before Master G. A. A. Pevey at the East Cambridge courthouse today developed into one of the liveliest sessions for some weeks.

Mrs. Mary Rusaw of Brasher, N. Y., the first witness, was being cross-examined by Attorney Scharton for Dakota Dun Russell, the claimant. Mr. Scharton had asked her a few clarry questions. Attorney Nason for the Russell estate had objected. The spectators who crowded the courtroom broke into laughter at several of these outbursts by Joe Lawyer, and Attorney Nason protested to Master Pevey.

"It is absurd time this laughing stopped, your honor," he said. "We can't proceed in this manner. It may be from feeble-minded people or others but I ask you to stop it," said Mr. Nason.

"It will be stopped right now," replied Master Pevey. "Mr. officer, you can make yourself useful. Stop this laughing if you have to clear the courtroom." The laughing stopped.

CASSIDY ASKS FRIENDS OF PURE FOOD TO MAKE FIGHT FOR NEW BILLS

Harry P. Cassidy today urges every Boston man or woman, who can arrange to do so, to attend the legislative hearing tomorrow afternoon, when, in all probability, the fate of the first two pure food bills of the present session will be decided. This hearing has been carried over from yesterday, when the advocates of the bill presented their side. "These two bills," says Cassidy, "are progressive food laws of the sort Massachusetts needs. They should pass." Cassidy gives warning that the retail dealers are massing for an attack upon the bills. "The friends of pure food and honest food should also gather," he says.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

Tomorrow afternoon the Committee on Agriculture will give a hearing on two bills of vital importance to those in the State who want to see the consumer get pure food, and get the value that he pays for.

One is a bill to standardize cheese and regulate its sale. The other is a bill to regulate the standards of butter, renovated butter and oleomargerine.

At the hearing tomorrow afternoon the retail dealers will make for an attack upon the bill. THE FRIENDS OF PURE AND HONEST FOOD SHOULD ALSO GATHER to combat the attempts of the retailers to keep open a door for cheating the customer.

The hearing will be held sobut 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, after the session of the Legislature has closed. Go to the State House, find an elevator, and ask the elevator man where the Committee on Agriculture is sitting. He will tell you. Go to that committee room. Get in if the room isn't too crowded. Get in, and let the committee know—giving your name—that you BELIEVE IN PURE FOOD AND HONEST FOOD.

That is the only effective way you can meet the retailers' representatives who will be there.

People Must Awake.

They will be there to oppose this law. They will assert that they are for every possible safeguard over pure food, but do not believe in this law because it puts the burden upon the retailer, and MAKES HIM RESPONSIBLE IF HE SELLS POISONED OR CHEATING FOOD TO HIS CUSTOMERS.

Under whatever disguise he appears, or whatever arguments he advances, THE MAN WHO OPPOSES THE PASSAGE OF THESE FOOD BILLS IS A FOE OF PURE AND HONEST FOOD.

This promises to be the best pure food Legislature Massachusetts has ever seen. Public interest throughout the State was awakened. The legislators are showing an intelligent and increasing interest. At the hearing yesterday Chairman Ward, a Senator from the central part of the State, confounded the representatives of the retailers by his keen questioning.

Other members of the committee—I could not identify them—also asked questions that indicated their grasp of the situation, and showed they saw through the flimsy arguments of Mr. Underhill. Mr. Spinney and Mr. Briggs, who opposed the measure.

These men themselves admitted the law was a good one. Mr. Spinney proceeded to cite cases where retailers were selling cheese and fooling their customers. He told, too, how cider is sold, doped with benzoate of soda, without a warning to the customer.

Mr. Briggs made a laughable exhibition. He began to argue against the bill, but after a question from Senator Ward, admitted that he had not read the second section of it, which provides that only merely labeling thin cheese as "skim milk cheese" the retailer protects himself absolutely.

These farce men did assert that the retailer could not vouch for the analysis he goods. HE DOESN'T NEED TO THE [illegible] WHEN HE BUYS THEM ARE MARKED SO THAT HE KNOWS JUST WHAT THEIR QUALITY IS.

A retailer, who sells his standard cheese, or low standard cheese to his customers DOES SO KNOWINGLY, and knowingly deceives his customers if he misrepresents the quality of the goods.

The agents of the retailers made a plea for the retailer as the hearing concluded. They said he is harassed by laws.

THE PLAIN TRUTH IS THAT THE MAN WHO MAKES OR MARKETS FOOD IS THE HOLDER OF A PUBLIC TRUST, AND THE PLAIN TRUTH IS, ALSO, THAT MANY OF THESE MEN HAVE BETRAYED THAT TRUST BY SELLING CHEATING, ADULTERATED OR ACTUALLY POISONOUS FOODS TO THEIR TRUSTING CUSTOMERS.

I have no sympathy for the cheating retailer. He deserves no consideration. He should be driven to mend his ways or go out of business.

The two bills on which the hearing tomorrow will centre were introduced by Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston. Your Mayor in this at least is a progressive man, well up with the spirit of the times. I know nothing of him personally or otherwise—but I do know that these are meritorious bills.

Joseph J. Corbett, corporation, counsel of Boston, led the fight for the bills. Representatives of Boston and Massachusetts retailers opposed them. The hearing was before the Committee on Agriculture—Senator Ward, chairman.

Corporation Counsel Corbett said in opening the discussion of the bill is its a standard and regulate the sale of cheese:

Object of Bill.

We desire to make it a criminal offence to sell cheese containing less than fifty per cent. butter fat without telling the customer the facts.

This law is in the interest of the consumer and of the honest retailer. Cheese made from whole milk will be well above this fifty per cent. standard. Cheese below this standard may be sold, if it is labelled "skim Milk Cheese." We believe this law is necessary to stop the retailers who are cheating their customers by selling skim milk cheese as good cheese and at fraudulent prices.

James O. Jordan, milk inspector of the city of Boston, followed. He said:

There is much of this skim milk cheese fraudulently sold today. The consumer has no recourse whatever. Massachusetts is lagging behind her sister States and behind the Federal government. This law would simply put into effect in Massachusetts the Federal standard on cheese.

Then the retailers had their chance. Henry W. Mansfield, secretary of the Massachusetts Retail Grocery and Provision Dealers' Association, E. J. Spinney of Dorchester, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, and Alton E. Briggs, executive secretary of the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, spoke against the bill.

TECH PROFESSOR TO HELP GOVERNMENT FIND "PURE WATER"

What is pure water? Secretary of the United States Treasury is order to settle the question once and for all has asked Professors W. T. Sedgewick of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, M. J. Rossman and G. M. Whipple of Harvard, to serve on a commission recommended by Surgeon General Blue of the Public Health Service. The work of the three Boston professors it is expected will settle a problem over which years have been spent. The dangers of typhus, diphtheria and other germ diseases lurking in polluted water will probably be insisted, for as soon as a pure water standard is fixed it will probably be impossible for every drinking water source to be maintained at that standard.

The establishment of this standard will be the first move of the Public Health Service in connection with the questions soon to be issued prohibiting the dispensing of impure drinking water on railroad trains and other interstate carriers. These regulations will be enforced in cooperation with State Boards of Health.

BAY STATE ASKED TO JOIN CONFERENCE ON PURE MILK LAW

ALBANY, Jan. 22.—With a view of securing legislation in Connecticut, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, to improve the quality of the milk sold in New York city, a conference of representatives of those States is to be held in New York early in February. Governor Sulzer has appointed the New York conferees.

WAKEFIELD CLUB BEATS TRUST WITH COAL AT $6.50 PER TON

The New Citizens' Coal Club of Wakefield, formed to beat the Coal Trust, promises to prove an example for the people of other places to follow. Coal is to be sold at $6.50 to $6.75 per ton.

The club is to operate as the Wakefield Coal Supply Company. Each share costs $5, and dividends of 6 per cent. are expected. Coal will be sold to members at the cost from the mines, plus the cost of handling.

The supply will probably come through the Springfield Coal Shippers' League. That organization, having access to a practically unlimited supply from a large Pennsylvania independent mine, has invited Wakefield to co-operate.

FREE MEAT MEASURE STRONGLY FAVORED BY TARIFF FRAMERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—"Free meat," proposed by the House Democrats at the last session of Congress, but blocked by a presidential veto, will be part of the extra session of Congress tariff revision program. Members of the House Committee on Ways and Means emphasize a majority sentiment in favor of free meats and a strong trend toward free cattle.

HOW TO LIVE TO A SWEET OLD AGE

(William Boone Eldred, the oldest inhabitant of Wakefield, lived to be over a hundred because, he said, he swallowed a gallon of molasses a week.)

If you would live to be
One hundred years,
Get smoke and chew
As you need no fear
In days of youth, and spree,
Throw off your wigs and glasses,
For old age quickly passes,
And you'll get back
The youth you lack
If you will drink molasses!

MISS MADDOX BLAMES LIVING COST ON WIVES

The clerk today is living upon a scale that the rich merchant of ten or fifteen years ago followed.

Because of lack of knowledge few housewives are enabled to keep within an economical scale of household expenses.

Beef is improved by being kept in cold storage.

We eat too much and, therefore, we are subject to ills from overeating.—Mildred Maddox, contributing Editor of "Good Housekeeping."

Miss Mildred Maddox, who addressed the Philergians, a Braintree woman's club, declares the high cost of living is largely due to the fact eighty per cent. of Americans are non-proficients of food. Miss Maddox spoke on "What to Eat and How to Eat It." She declared:

Few American housekeepers keep within the scale laid out for food expenses, because they have very little knowledge of food prices from a scientific viewpoint.

Beef which is normally well ripened, meaning from two to four weeks in cold storage, is probably the most healthful form of beef. This means that cold storage of beef up to a certain point is a benefit rather than a detriment.

In the cooking of beef high temperature for a very short time is far better than a low temperature for a long time. If you like very well done meat, there is nothing, to my mind, that will be tender, as the tenderloin, and perhaps one or two of the sirloin parts, because the fibre of the meat is toughened by long cooking.

Frozen fish so long as it is frozen is in good condition, but unless meat, fish when once frozen but has thawed is not in good condition. This applies to the frozen fish, on which we are becoming more and more dependent.

Eating of too much food at one time is far more apt to be the cause of illness rather than ptomaine poisoning. If Uncle Sam's men in the Philippines had been as careful of their tinned meats as they are of fresh meat, they would not have experienced the trouble they did.

Apples baked with sugar have more food value than the potato, and all fruits are rich in the sources of food material, but they should be treated as concentrated foods. Chew them thoroughly and use them at legitimate times and you will find them good food material.

GRAND RAPIDS IN COAL BUSINESS TO FIGHT THE H. C. L.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 22.—Grand Rapids is planning to go into the coal business in an effort to reduce the high cost of living and to fight the local dealers with their high prices. The Common Council is behind the move.

W. J. Sully, an independent operator at Buffalo, has contracted to deliver f. o. b. Grand Rapids all the anthracite the city wants at $6.75 per ton. The city will charge $1.50 per ton for handling and will deliver the fuel in the consumer at $1 per ton cheaper than the local dealers are now charging.

DISMISSAL OF CASSIDY CAUSES GREAT PROTEST

(From Philadelphia North American.)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 21.—So great has been the protest since Governor Tener dismissed State Food Agent Harry P. Cassidy from office, to please Senator Penrose, "Admiral" Foust and the food dope interests that the Governor has come to the conclusion that a real popular thing for him to do is to urge the passage by the new Legislature of genuine pure food legislation, with the dope cut out, and to deal an effective blow to the "rots and spots" egg business.

He is quite right in thinking this is what the people want, and pure food advocates will welcome him as a recruit.

If there is one thing Tener desires since the birth of his ambition to succeed Penrose as boss, it is to get the name of being an executive hero, and to do that he has quite a step to go. He is having prepared by Attorney-General Bell and other trusty billmakers a lot of bills on various subjects, which he wishes known as Tener administration bills. Among these measures, it is said, is one prohibiting the sale as food of benzoate of soda, sulphur dioxide, alum and other dope. "Admiral" Foust, Tener's daily and food commissioner, will be expected to execute a right about face movement and baste for it.

Also, the Tener program is understood to include reintroduction and support of Cassidy's bill to denature rotten eggs by the addition of coal oil or some other offensive substance, so that they cannot by any subterfuge be used for food purposes.

Agent Cassidy, who was "fired" by Foust and "fired" again by Tener, after a farcical hearing, on charges framed up by a food-dope lawyer, persons he had prosecuted for selling doped foods and rotten egg men, always stood in opposition to dope legislation of any kind, while his chief, the "admiral," has figured as its defender.

Lady Cook Visiting Hub, Says 'I'm Still Needed in World'

At seventy years of age Lady Frances Cook who once, as Tennessee C. Claflin, shocked the public with so-classed "indelicate" utterances on suffrage, higher morality and other allied subjects, is back again in Boston—this time not as a crusader, but as a veteran of times that have caught up with her once advanced ideas.

"There is still need of me in the world," she declared today, however, "for the millennium is not yet here."

Some of the causes for which she fought are today accomplishments, such as the employment of women in nearly every trade and profession, and the right of women to dine in public, to go to the theatre or to travel on railroad or steamship without escort.

DOUBLE WEDDING TO END GERMAN FEUD

KARLSRUHE, Germany, Jan. 22.—At a meeting here today between Prince Adalbert, the third son of Emperor William, and Prince Ernest, youngest son of the Duke of Cumberland, it is believed that first steps were taken to end the ancient feud between the reigning house of Hohenzollern and the house of Cumberland, which arose over the absorption of the kingdom of Hanover by Prussia. The reconciliation may be cemented by a double marriage between Princess Victoria Louise, daughter of the Kaiser, and Prince Ernest, and those of Prince Adalbert and Princess Olga of Cumberland.

ANGELA MORGAN TELLS OF GARMENT WORKER'S HEROISM TO AID SON

By ANGELA MORGAN.

ANGELA MORGAN

How would you like it, you housewives who rise from your sewing machines and sign with exhaustion over three or four hours' work?

How would you like it if you had to work nine hours at that machine whether you were able to or not?

Not nine hours in one day, but nine hours every day of a working season, year in and year out.

How would you like it, you sheltered home women, you who get nervous and worried and hysterical because you've got to finish Clarissa's dress for the High School dance, or make some new shirt waists for another daughter, or a dress for the baby, or some fancy bedspread aprons for yourself.

How would you like it if you had to get up in the morning and station yourselves at a sewing table and stay there all day long, bent over one eternal task, until your eyes ached, your back felt like a lot of needle points all pricking at once, and your fingers were so tired you had to drive them with will power to sew at all?

What would you do, if after all your drudgery, you were able to earn but $5 and $6 a week—wage that would scarce shelter you, and feed and clothe you?

Well, this is just what is happening right in Boston today. Thousands of women are slaving nine hours a day and getting a wage that will not feed or clothe them, and they are in despair because they must live, or go the path of sin, or die.

Here is one of them, Mrs. Ullian, a Russian Jewess, who works as a finisher of ladies' garments.

Her story is the beautiful one of a mother's sacrifice. Here is a woman who is slaving in a sweatshop to keep her boy in good shape. She is determined to give him an education, and thus keep him out of the terrible factory conditions she and her family have known.

"One thing I have made up my mind to do," she told me, "My boy shall have an education. If I sew my fingers to the bone to do it. We have been shrewd, he shall be free."

Let me ask you women a question—you working housewives. Wouldn't you—any one of you—think you had quite a task ahead of you today if you had to sew up an entire coat and perhaps sew on the buttons and put in the sleeves? Or if you were to mention it to a neighbor in the course of a day as something that took quite a bit of your time and energy?

Must Get Up Early.

Well, then, what would you do if you had to live eight or nine coats in one day, between the hours of eight and six?

Could you do it?

"Oh?" I hear you exclaim, "but you see, I have all my housework to add too to my sewing."

Now, here is the most amazing thing of all about these garment workers. When you suppose these women do their housework? Did you have an idea they hired it done?

These women do their housework in addition to their seven shop week. Each one is out only the man or the family but the housewife, too.

After the day's work is over, many women of the home are free to attend our card parties, your church suppers, your branch and theatres and operas.

Not so Mrs. Ullian and her sister workers.

At the very hour when you are rallying forth in your theatre wraps, she is starting in on her day's work, done at night. She must clean house, and mend her boy's socks, and put a patch in his coat and make herself a waist perhaps and do the hundred other things women must do to present a decent, clean appearance to the world.

When does she sleep?

I am sure I don't know. Nobody knows. She must get up in the morning at six or earlier in order to get breakfast and send the boy to school and have time to get to her work. Nearly all the garment workers walk to their work, if they spend carfare, what would remain for necessaries? Carfare is a luxury, not a necessity, it would seem. Mrs. Ullian lives at a distance and must ride.

Mrs. Ullian is the mother of six children. Some of them have died, the others, except the boy she helps to support, are married and are struggling with their own problems of how to live.

For twelve years she has been father and mother to her children, has played the main part and the woman's too. Now at this time of life, when she has earned the right to some portion of rest and recreation she must keep up the struggle for the sake of the boy who is now her one hope for the future.

Mrs. Ullian made $6 and a little over this week, and maybe some weeks she will earn more. But in the dark season she will not earn over two or three dollars a week—and then how will she and the boy live at all?

Here is the kind of work Mrs. Ullian does at the overstamp where she is employed. These are her duties:

She sits at a table with all the other women and girls who do what is called finishing on ladies' garments—the coats of tailored suits. Her task is to put the lining in the coat, first placing the strip of facing securely down the front, where the buttons and buttonholes will be sewn. Then she bastes the sleeves to the coat and her work on the one garment is done. This lining is of course all stitched by hand. Every stitch a finisher puts in is by hand and never by machine.

Mrs. Ullian's Story.

Mrs. Ullian told her story to me, at the headquarters of the Cloak and Skirt Makers' Union at No. 31 North Russell street. She spoke partly through an interpreter, and the interpreter was her own son, the boy for whom she is making the sacrifice. Bennie is a clean, bright, fine faced [illegible] boy. As he translated his mother and told her story through the English language, which he had seemingly to learn through her labor, I could see that here was a boy whom it paid to educate.

"I realize what my mother's sacrifice means. I'm going to study hard and make a man of myself and some day I'm going to make her proud of me and earn enough to give her all the good things she deserves."

Here is Mrs. Ullian's own story:

"I was born in Russia and married there. My husband was a custom tailor. He died twelve years ago, and then I had to go out to earn the money. In Russia I couldn't earn enough to live and support my six children, so I went to London and worked there four years. Still I could not get enough for us all. I had a letter from New York, and made up my mind to try this country. I was in New York working for five years. Then I came to Boston.

"Here I have been working as a finisher of ladies' coats. My boy and I live in an attic room out in Everett, and pay $4.50 a month rent. He helps me with the housework when he can. He goes to the Everett High School.

"I get up at 6 o'clock in the morning to have breakfast and start in time for my work. I get the boy ready—see that his clothes are all right. I leave at 7 o'clock. Most of the workers walk to the shop, but I live so far I have to spend car fare. I couldn't ever get there if I tried to walk.

"At lunch time my boy goes home and gets his own lunch on the gas stove, for I've prepared things so he can do it. I can't get back home until 7 at night.

"When I come home after work in the shop I get supper, and after that I do the housework. How do we manage to clothe ourselves on what I earn? you ask. Well, we haven't any clothes except what we wear, you see. I have to keep Bennie in the house while I wash his things. That's the plain truth.

"That is the only way people can do when they earn only $5 or $6 a week throughout the year. We have to manage the best we can with what we've got.

"But it does seem strange, it seems so strange and hard to me, that we've I work all the time I can't make enough to live on. That's the thing I can't understand. But I'm going to send my boy through high school if I have to work all day and all night to do it.

ASK PELLETIER TO SIFT GARMENT SHOP CHARGES

A conspiracy by the boss garment workers to coerce men and women into deserting their union is charged by the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, who today are to lay before District Attorney Pelletier proof of this contention.

Assurances have been given the officers of the union that the moment this charge is substantiated by the documentary evidence they claim to be in possession of, the matter will be laid before the Grand Jury and criminal action instituted against the employers in question.

That the union already is in possession of this proof of the alleged conspiracy is asserted by Benjamin Horne, business agent of the Ladies' Garment Workers District Council, who today exhibited several typewritten letters from different bosses dealing with the subject in controversy.

These letters are in the form of contracts, which, it is alleged, the workers are required to sign in order to secure employment, bonding themselves not to strike, and it is said that those refusing to sign are being discharged on every hand.

One clause, in which employes must agree to go upon strike, in a factory, not necessarily, it would seem, Mrs. Ullian lives at a distance and must ride.

Mrs. Ullian is the mother of six children. Some of them have died, the others, except the boy she helps to support, are married and are struggling with their own problems of how to live.

For twelve years she has been father and mother to her children, has played the main part and the woman's too. Now at this time of life, when she has earned the right to some portion of rest and recreation she must keep up the struggle for the sake of the boy who is now her one hope for the future.

Mrs. Ullian made $6 and a little over this week, and maybe some weeks she will earn more. But in the dark season she will not earn over two or three dollars a week—and then how will she and the boy live at all?

Here is the kind of work Mrs. Ullian does at the overstamp where she is employed. These are her duties:

She sits at a table with all the other women and girls who do what is called finishing on ladies' garments—the coats of tailored suits. Her task is to put the lining in the coat, first placing the strip of facing securely down the front, where the buttons and buttonholes will be sewn. Then she bastes the sleeves to the coat and her work on the one garment is done. This lining is of course all stitched by hand. Every stitch a finisher puts in is by hand and never by machine.

Mrs. Ullian's Story.

Mrs. Ullian told her story to me, at the headquarters of the Cloak and Skirt Makers' Union at No. 31 North Russell street. She spoke partly through an interpreter, and the interpreter was her own son, the boy for whom she is making the sacrifice. Bennie is a clean, bright, fine faced [illegible] boy. As he translated his mother and told her story through the English language, which he had seemingly to learn through her labor, I could see that here was a boy whom it paid to educate.

"I realize what my mother's sacrifice means. I'm going to study hard and make a man of myself and some day I'm going to make her proud of me and earn enough to give her all the good things she deserves."

Here is Mrs. Ullian's own story:

"I was born in Russia and married there. My husband was a custom tailor. He died twelve years ago, and then I had to go out to earn the money. In Russia I couldn't earn enough to live and support my six children, so I went to London and worked there four years. Still I could not get enough for us all. I had a letter from New York, and made up my mind to try this country. I was in New York working for five years. Then I came to Boston.

"Here I have been working as a finisher of ladies' coats. My boy and I live in an attic room out in Everett, and pay $4.50 a month rent. He helps me with the housework when he can. He goes to the Everett High School.

"I get up at 6 o'clock in the morning to have breakfast and start in time for my work. I get the boy ready—see that his clothes are all right. I leave at 7 o'clock. Most of the workers walk to the shop, but I live so far I have to spend car fare. I couldn't ever get there if I tried to walk.

"At lunch time my boy goes home and gets his own lunch on the gas stove, for I've prepared things so he can do it. I can't get back home until 7 at night.

"When I come home after work in the shop I get supper, and after that I do the housework. How do we manage to clothe ourselves on what I earn? you ask. Well, we haven't any clothes except what we wear, you see. I have to keep Bennie in the house while I wash his things. That's the plain truth.

"That is the only way people can do when they earn only $5 or $6 a week throughout the year. We have to manage the best we can with what we've got.

"But it does seem strange, it seems so strange and hard to me, that we've I work all the time I can't make enough to live on. That's the thing I can't understand. But I'm going to send my boy through high school if I have to work all day and all night to do it.

MRS. ANTHONY AND HER ARMLET THAT DAZZLED GOTHAM

400 DIAMONDS IN ARMLET OF MRS. ANTHONY

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Mrs. Hattie Anthony of Muncie, Ind., is again today making loungers in the Waldorf-Astoria in almost Peacock Alley sit up and pay particular heed.

Mrs. Anthony, who dazzled Gotham a few months ago with diamond studded slipper heels, is now wearing an armlet which she proudly proclaims was made in Indianapolis and which is regarded as one of the most wonderful pieces of jewelry ever seen in this city.

The armlet consists of 400 pure white diamonds. It has a platinum base and is in the shape of a deer de lis at the wrist. A chain of graduated diamonds, ranging from three carats down to a carat extends from the armlet proper to the turquoise ring of diamonds on her third finger.

Mrs. Anthony has a son, H. M. Anthony, at Harvard.

N. J. DEMOCRATS PLAN TO PASS ANTI-TRUST LAWS WILSON FAVORS

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 22.—Governor Woodrow Wilson, the President-elect of the United States, today called a conference of Democratic members of both houses of the New Jersey Legislature at the State House next Tuesday afternoon to discuss the seven corporation bills introduced Monday evening.

The conferees will map out a campaign to pass the bills in short order. Corporation interests have already opened fire upon the measures, which would deal sharply with monopolies in this State. Democratic leaders wish, as a compliment to the President-elect, to pass his bills before he leaves the governorship.

Why Should You Worry? It Only Clogs Your Mind

"I should worry, and clog my mind," was really the subject of Miss Annie Payson Call's address before the Jamaica Plain Tuesday Club in Eliot Hall, though it was more formally announced by the presiding officer as "How to Work Without Fatigue." Worry, Miss Call insisted, clogs the mind and anger generates poison in the blood. Miss Call further declared:

Worry, anger, fear, hurry, irritability are nothing but resistances, and they tighten up your muscles and clog your mind, because they impede circulation, and contraction brings fatigue.

When you fail to worrying for fear you won't catch your train you simply tighten all your muscles till they impede the progress you would otherwise have made. But tell yourself it is no such tragedy if you do miss that train and your normal state is restored.

NEW TONIC LIKE SEA BREEZES, PURE AIR AND SUNSHINE

"I was very gratified the other day when the owner of one of the largest drug stores in Boston came up to me and told me he had never seen anything since he was in the drug business like the way the clerks in the store were buying Tona Vita. He told me that last week fourteen bottles of this tonic were bought by clerks working in the store," said John Beasley Webb, the London nerve expert, who is assisting in the introduction of Tona Vita in Boston.

"While I was gratified, I cannot say that I was surprised, for drug clerks are human and they could not have helped but notice how Tona Vita was helping so many of the citizens of Boston who were suffering from nervous debility. They knew from their own experience that it was the best tonic that had ever been handled across a counter in a drug store, and one of the nicest tasting.

"Tona Vita is the quintessence of sunshine, sea breezes, mountain air, absolute rest and careful diet, all in bottle form. Its action on the nerves is just like that of a gentle rain shower on a drooping and parched plant.

"Nervous Debility may be recognized by any of the following symptoms: Broken sleep at night, loss of memory, spells of lassitude, lack of energy and ambition, no appetite, a sense of fullness after eating, pains in the back and head; and, in fact, any of those ills that combine to make that 'run-down' feeling.

"Tona Vita is a tonic which has been especially prepared to relieve these rundown cases, and is now on sale at all the principal drug stores in Boston."

Book 3 of His (In) Famous

Mutt and Jeff Cartoons

MY publisher insists that I dedicate this publication to some one. He claims that no book is a regular book without this ceremony. Such being the case, I suppose I should put it on to somebody or something, but the more I think of it the harder it is to dedicate a package of debris like this. Of course it would be easy if I had some arch enemy whom I desired to insult, but at the present writing I can think of no such loeman. But if I must insult some one, I will select a party who has been insulted so much he won't mind it; therefore, I dedicate this book to Dr. Cook, the man who almost discovered that he could discover the North Pole.

What Has Gone Before:

Gommery Bale, just out of prison, where he has served a term for stealing a lady's purse, greets his wife, Hannah, with a blow. He tells her he wants to get in touch with their boarder, Frank Wentworth, who is the missing heir to a fortune. After taking the woman's last penuies he advises her to go a-begging. Mrs. Bale is about to strike Fudge, a waif, whom she makes sell flowers on the streets, when Wentworth intervenes. Since leaving college Frank has had no work and is now poverty-stricken. He and Fudge condole with each other on their hard lot in life.

Now Go On with the Story

PART I.

"Yes, Fudge," replied Frank with a sigh.

"I thought you was hard up, just now I saw a man with some hot corn."

"Eating it, I suppose?" queried Frank.

"No; selling it. I bought an ear," said Fudge shyly, "and hid it in your room. Let's go up there and git it."

To please Fudge he went with her to the room. Fudge got out the ear of corn. "You have a bite," she said, holding it up before him.

"No, no, Fudge. Dick Gerson will be home directly and then we will go out and get something to eat. He has been looking for work."

"You and him were never meant for work," explained Fudge.

During this talk Fudge had been holding the corn in her apron.

"Aren't you hungry, Fudge?" asked Frank.

"No," I can go a good while without eating yet; why?"

"Because that supper is your own."

"Honor bright, it isn't," replied Fudge. Then out it, Fudge; I have no appetite, and it will please me best."

"Oh, then, if it will please you I just do."

The little waif began to eat the corn ravenously. Frank restrained her, saying, "Gently, Fudge. It's wicked to eat as fast as that, and yet, poor girl, you must make the best of it, and eat for tomorrow as well."

Fudge smiled. "I'm eating for yesterday first, sir," she replied.

"Poor girl. Ah, Fudge, I am afraid that you and I will never do much good in this life," said Frank, sadly.

"There ain't no harm in trying, mister."

Why do you call me master?"

"Because you was the first who ever spoke kind words to me, and taught me to forget the world was cruel."

Hannah had followed the pair into the house. From the kitchen she called to the waif.

"I'm comin'—I'm comin," answered Fudge. At the door she turned and said: "Good-by, master."

Talks of Ruth

Frank Wentworth lay wearily on his bed, saying, "Poor little Fudge, poor as myself tonight. Oh! Ruth—Ruth to whom I pledge my troth. Will I never hear your voice, or look into your eyes to see that love still in your soul for me? I said that day would come, but poverty decided otherwise, and when the ties that bind us to the lives of others to whom we look for sympathy and love are broken, we begin to care for less about ourselves.

Dionysius Matherson had inherited a large fortune from his father. He had been educated chiefly abroad, but years in Paris and London had not destroyed the Yankee trait for making money. After years passed he had added to his wealth, until now, although he had a law office in Wall street, he spent his business hours principally in looking after his investments. He was living in a country home on the banks of the Hudson, within an hour's ride of the city. It was a beautiful mansion, set in the midst of a grove of trees. From a broad veranda one could see the spires of New York to the southward. To the north, there was a grand outlook up the Hudson. His recreation was the raising of orchids and he added the beautiful conservatory in the rear of his house. Here, after luncheon, he and Mrs. Matherson had retired for a family conference.

"My dear Dion," Mrs. Matherson was saying.

"Pray don't contradict me, for I saw the words upon your lips," he replied.

"But you thought it, Dion, you know you did!"

"I don't acknowledge that I thought it, but you can think that I thought it if it will content you."

Mr. Matherson detested arguments with his wife. She delighted in not only having the last word, but in having her own way. It had been a marriage more of convenience than of love. Two fortunes had been made into one by the words that made them man and wife. Although they had spent most of their time in bickering, they were never satisfied when parted for any length of time. As Mr. Matherson delighted in raising the finest orchids, his wife's joy was in making social conquests. She was an ambitious woman, as her answers showed.

Mrs. Matherson Discontented

"Content me!" No, no. For in the distinguished position I now occupy as the chaperone to Ruth, merely being the wife of Dionysius Matherson is not sufficiently aristocratic, so I purpose to add my maiden name and be addressed in the future as Mrs. Matherson Dares."

Mr. Matherson gazed at her in amazement. He was accustomed to his wife's eccentricities, but this new departure actually made him gasp.

"But why?"

"Because it was my own, and I am anxious to cling to it on the score of its antiquity."

Mr. Matherson could not restrain from a sly dig, replying: "But devilishly anxious to part with it before antiquity reached you."

"You are very sarcastic," she replied, loudly; "but I rather fancy the flavor of the announcement of Mrs. Matherson Dares."

"I don't," he replied, "for it sounds more like an affirmation than a name. Mrs. Matherson dares—does she? God knows knows, Maria, you have seen little of my society since you became a chaperone to Ruth."

"And now that you think you have found Frank Wentworth your object now is to leave Ruth, whom I love as a daughter, having none of my own, and to return to New York and your temper."

Rightful Heir to Fortune

Frank Wentworth was the heir of the fortune of Margaret Cumberworth. In her youth she had been the sweetheart of Frank's father. Poverty at first had separated them. Other differences, chiefly those of pride, had come between, until the young people drifted apart. Frank's father had married, although he had never ceased to love Margaret Cumberworth. At his death Frank had been sent West. All trace of the lad was lost. The friends of his father who might have helped him if he could have been found soon forgot him. Years later Margaret Cumberworth learned that the sweetheart of her youth had always loved her and she forgave him his apparent desertion.

Before her death she had obtained the trace of the boy and helped him to obtain an education. She made him the joint heir of her estates, with her niece, Ruth, provided they marry. Mr. Matherson was the executor of the estate. With Ruth he had attended the college commencement at the time of Frank's graduation. There was no need of the romance of a will to bring the young people together, as they had fallen in love at first sight.

When Frank came East it was not known that he was the heir of Ruth's aunt. His failure to make a fortune had made him stop writing to Ruth. Mr. Matherson had hard work to coax him, as the boy with his failures had dropped out of the old haunts where he was known in his earlier and more prosperous days in the city.

It was Mr. Matherson's advertisement that Gommery had seen in the paper and shown to Frank. The latter was to take place on the evening of the talk in the conservatory. Indeed, it was the former desire of Margaret Cumberworth in which Ruth and the Mathersons were now living.

"You Are Very Sarcastic," She Replied Hotly, but I Rather Fancy the Flavor of the Announcement of Mrs. Matherson Dares."

Mr. Matherson wished Ruth Ferrars to return to New York and spend the Winter with the young wife of General Brittlebank. He believed she would be under a better influence with her than in the circle in which his wife moved.

He did not reply to her suggestions for possible separation, but confined his answer to her remark about his temper.

"I think the best way," he replied, "would be to try not to manage it. But here come Ruth and the General's wife."

Hilda and Ruth

"Oh, yes, Hilda and Ruth are great friends. Rumor says that General Brittlebank met his wife at the cat show in New York."

Matherson chuckled. "Not bad," he said to himself. "The General isn't a bad judge of cats."

His wife would have passed over the remark with contempt if she had heard it.

As it was, she snorted on her favorite tea table subject of gossip.

"I only hope," she said, "the General's second wife will turn out better than his first."

"Hush! Here they are," replied Mr. Matherson.

Ruth Ferrars entered the conservatory with her arm about Hilda's waist.

Ruth was a splendid type of a young American girl. She was fond of outdoor sports, but was not so much at home in the parlor as she was on the links. She had been educated by her aunt, Margaret Cumberworth. Mr. Matherson had settled up the estate of the Cumberworths, and, playing the kindness of Ruth, had taken her into his own home. She had been the life of his household, and he loved the girl as if she was his own daughter. Hilda was a few years older than Ruth. Of her past nothing was known. She had been introduced to the circle as the wife of General Brittlebank and had been received as such.

As Ruth entered the conservatory she ran to the side of Mr. Matherson. Slipping her arm about his neck, she said: "Ah, Guardy, I have just heard of your arrival from New York and the news that you have got——"

"Yes, the heir to this property, Frank Wentworth, has been found, and couldn't in New York I will tell him the news of his good fortune."

Ruth sighed happily.

"And I shall see him again, after all these years. Is he well and happy?" she asked.

"Neither well nor happy," replied Mr. Matherson. "He is ill in a dingy room in a tenement house in the greatest of poverty."

His Poverty a Surprise

"Poverty!" said Ruth, surprised. "Oh! this, then, is the reason he never wrote to me, and I misjudged his silence. I can how rejoice at our reunion, for I feel he has been wronged."

Turning to Hilda, she continued: "Ah, Hilda, wish me joy, for the heir to this estate is the man to whom I plighted my troth several years ago at his college commencement."

"My best congratulations, Ruth," exclaimed Mr. Matherson, heartily.

"And mine," said Mrs. Matherson, with equal enthusiasm.

Hilda walked over to a rose bush as if to examine a bud. Ty herself she said: "Frank Wentworth coming here. Richard son was his friend. He will know me. He will tell them all."

Resuming his conversation with Ruth, Mr. Matherson said, "Now, you see how it all stands."

"Yes, but"—— began Mrs. Matherson.

"Don't interrupt me, Maria," said her husband, testily.

"My dear, I never spoke," replied Mrs. Matherson, indignantly.

"But you looked as though you would, and that's just as disconcerting." Mr. Matherson paused for a moment. Then he continued his explanations to Ruth.

"Now you know the conditions of your late aunt's will. She bequeaths you the whole of her real and personal estate, conditionally, that you become the wife of Frank Wentworth, but if he is not free to marry, the whole estate will be inherited by you. Now this singular will proved her generous heart, for, although his father wronged her, she has given to the son the opportunity of securing a wealth and love which he so richly endeavored in his poverty to obtain."

"Yes," replied Ruth, "for his last words when we parted were: 'However long our separation may be you will never be absent from my hopes and thoughts and prayers, and though cruel years may pass between us, I feel with all my soul the day will come.'"

Congratulations for Ruth

Mr. Matherson took the hand of the happy girl in his, replying. "The day has come, and I wish you every happiness, dear Ruth."

The conversation was interrupted by a hearty voice saying, "all right, young fellow, I can find my way."

Hilda returned hastily to the group. "My husband!" she gasped.

"The General's voice," said Mr. Matherson, with a smile. "You can tell that he is an honest man if you can only hear him laugh."

General Brittlebank entered the conservatory with a laugh. He was tall, well built and soldierly looking. He had earned his title through hard service in Indian wars, and had served his last campaign where wounds and the fever had caused him to retire. Returning to New York to live on his pay and his income, he had met Hilda Rose and married her after a short acquaintance. He was a great surprise to his friends. Early in life he had married, but his wife had disappeared under a cloud. His friends had hoped that the second venture would be a happier one.

"Ah! Miss Ruth, a bright morning to you," greeted the General.

"Good morning, Mrs. Matherson, have just come to drive an honest lawyer to the station. Honest lawyer, eh? Ha! ha! ha!"

"Hiram," said Hilda, reproachfully——

"Ah! Hilda and Miss Ruth, both of you are looking as sweet as the roses. You mustn't regret getting over my disappointment," he said to Ruth. "We are not getting on into years, and I passed my youth in wishing that I could, and am not going to pass my older age in regretting that I didn't, or I married Hilda."

He took his wife's hand in his, and gazed fondly into her eyes.

"How did you like the trip abroad?" asked Mrs. Matherson.

"Well, you see," he answered, "I had the money and the time, and that does be rich with the foreigner. He may have the parning. Matherson, but if you have got no cause, where is your effect?"

"Effect, nevir, interrupted Matherson. "We must be off, General, for I have an appointment with the heir in New York!"

"We are all anxious to see him! Eh? Ha, ha! Good one, General," shaking his finger at Ruth. "So come along, Matherson. Time and train wait for no one."

General Brittlebank and Mr. Matherson hurried to the train, and the ladies re-entered the house.

Frank Wentworth, the hole to the great estate, lived in a miserably furnished room on the third floor of Mrs. Bale's house in one corner of the room was the bed which he shared with Gerson. Opposite was a fireplace, in which a few coals smouldered. Wentworth was so ill that a fire, although a luxury at this time of year for many, was to him a necessity. The window looked out into a dismal courtyard. Wentworth was endeavoring to write at a table. He hoped to have some of his articles accepted by the editors of the papers whose offices were within a few doors of his room. It was not because why he lived in North Wilson street, as he wished to be near the offices. If ever a man was needed in an emergency. Again, it saved him carfare and weary walks from uptown.

What Detains Dick?

"It's no use," he said to himself, rising and walking over to the fire. "I can't write. What can detain Dick? The room is cold, and I feel so weak that I cannot sit up much longer."

A knock at the door interrupted him. "Is that you, Dick?" he called.

"No, sir—Fudge," she said, entering. "I didn't know that you were worse or I would have come up sooner. I waited until Gommery went out—then slips up."

Fudge crouched down beside him before the fire.

"Is he so cruel to you?" asked Frank of his little friend.

More Truth Than Poetry

"It was a cough
That carried him off;
It was a coffin
They carried him off in."

The action of the Board of Health, urging citizens to take precautions against the prevailing coughs and colds, brings to mind the old jingle. Probably most of the deaths in this country today are the result of diseases which had their origin in neglected coughs.

There is no better prescription for giving immediate relief to acute coughs and speedily breaking up the most severe colds than that of a famous throat specialist, who always advises his patients to shake together two ounces of glycerine, eight ounces of whiskey and half an ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine, and to take a teaspoonful of this simple remedy every four hours.

Any druggist can supply you with genuine Virgin Oil of Pine, which comes only in sealed half-ounce vials in wooden cartons bearing the label of The Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati.

GARDEN TO WED 'YANKEE HUSKY,' NOT MARCOUX

Miss Mary Garden is the centre of the latest operatic and near-matrimonial mixup of the day—and, as usual, it was she who stirred up the whole thing. The hero in the serio-comic episode is Vanni Marcoux, baritone of the Boston Opera Company, and the title of the piece is:

Who Is to marry him?

Miss Garden says right quickly that she is NOT.

Why? First, says Mary, because she is going to marry a Yankee, and second, because she is is going to marry a "husky" Yankee.

Picks Boston Girl.

In the next place, says Miss Garden, Vanni has already picked out a Boston girl as his third bride.

Miss Garden added, speaking of Vanni: "We are simply friends."

Marcoux has been married twice, and divorce papers releasing him from his latest wife reached him yesterday from Paris. The divorce, it is understood, has been granted upon the grounds of incompatibility, and beyond the payment of the expenses in the proceedings amounting to nearly 150,000 francs, or about $35,000, no alimony has been granted to the former wife.

"Very true, Miss Garden is right," admitted Marcoux today. "The girl I am to wed is a Bostonian."

"Who is she?" Marcoux was asked.

"A Boston woman."

"Is she a singer?"

"Oh, no."

"An artist, though, of course?"

"No."

"But didn't you say yesterday that 'an artist's life is impossible unless his wife is an artist, too?'"

Not Wealthy, Either.

"As I was saying, I can't tell you any more than that she is a Boston woman."

"That lets Miss Garden out of it?"

"Certainly."

"Is SHE wealthy?"

"No."

"Does she live in Brookline?"

"No. In Boston.

"Back Bay?"

"Now, kindly don't get so insistent. I can't tell you any more."

GIRL SLAPPED AU! SUCH AWE! COSTS HER $2

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Man with the shortest name in the directory.

At last breaks into grief.

Emil Au breaks in with a crash.

Sh-a-a-m.

That's the crash. It lands on Emil's face.

Rapid stuff. Short sentences. Couldn't do otherwise with name like Au. Quick action. Thus:

Au lives at No. 53 Wilton street. That's in Glendale, L. I. Coming to work on the train. So was Miss Marie Knoff. She's twenty-seven. Lives at No. 422 Evergreen avenue, Brooklyn.

Car crowded. Both in aisle. Curve. Bump.

Feminine glare.

"Won't you move up?"

"Sorry, madame. Can't."

Curve. Bump II. Dotted line of daggers.

"If you don't move—slap your face."

"Like to see you do it."

Sh-a-am. (Same one as above). "Have you arrested."

"Like to see you do it."

Au does it. Scene shifts to Gates avenue court. Magistrate Harris examines slapped face.

Young woman—$2 fine.

She pays.

Au—out.

TODAY'S LATE CABLE NEWS

J. P. Morgan At Monte Carlo.

MONTE CARLO—J. Pierpont Morgan and party, on their way to Egypt, have arrived here on board the White Star liner Adriatic.

Mr. Morgan is enjoying his vacation immensely. He is in excellent health and spirits and is as happy as a boy just out of school for the summer vacation.

He was feeling so fine today that he actually consented to be interviewed. He expressed himself as being much pleased so far with his journey. He said he had had excellent weather throughout. Mr. Morgan's party includes his daughter, Mrs. Satterlee; his granddaughter, Miss Hamilton, and Mr. and Mrs. Lithgow.

Twins Puzzle Police.

LONDON—Which is which? That's what the London police would like to know concerning Albert Ebenezer Fox and his twin brother, Ebenezer Albert Fox, who are exact duplicates in facial and physical appearance and who, strangest of all, seem to have similar handwritings. The other day the police sought Albert Ebenezer on a charge of poaching. The police grabbed Ebenezer Albert, who protested his innocence. Ebenezer was released, however, when a letter was received from Albert Ebenezer stating that he was guilty.

Say Abbe Was Slain.

PARIS—The sensation caused at Agen, near Bordeaux, by the death of the Abbe Chassaing, cure of the Parish of St. Hilaire, who was found in the apartment of Mme. Alice Crespy, one of his parishioners, with a bullet in his forehead, has been increased by a letter sent to the press by C. Chassaing, eldest brother of the Abbe, in which he says the dead man was not a suicide but was murdered.

Explains Color Blindness.

LONDON—Lecturing at the Royal Institute on "Heredity of Sex," Professor Bateson said a color-blind woman is rarely found and is always a daughter of a color-blind man. Her sons and daughters would be normal, her son's families would be normal, but if her daughter had sons, they would be found to be normal and color-blind in equal numbers.

Order Closes Theatres.

BUENOS AYRES—The theatres continue closed. One of the most prominent impresarios has decided to close his theatre for the season. The authorities recently issued an order that sufficient space must be provided between the seats so that persons entering after the performance has commenced can go to their places without disturbing those already seated.

Raphael Bubble Bursts.

LONDON—The Raphael bubble has burst. The much-discussed alleged "original" of the famous Pitti picture of the "Madonna della Quercia," or "Holy Family Under an Oak," now at the Cecil Hotel, London, far from being a Raphael original, is merely a school copy, vastly inferior to the Prado copy in every respect.

Jerome's Play Scores.

LONDON—"Not another 'Passing of the Third Floor Back,' but should prove a winner, all the same," said a prominent American playgoer, after witnessing the premiere of Jerome K. Jerome's new American play, "Esther Castaways." Maria Tempest, by Esther, scored a great success.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

They Are Closely Observing Public Health Conditions

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on this subject, made the astonishing statement that the reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of applicants do not even suspect that they have the disease.

He states that judging from his own experience and reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has probably been more successful in relieving and curing these diseases than any remedy known. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly an herbal compound and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes—fifty-cents and one-dollar.

However, if you wish first to test its wonderful merits, send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle, absolutely free. When writing be sure and mention the Boston Daily American.

Nutrition Disease Affects the Blood

With Good Appetite, the Sufferer Wastes Away.

A disease of nutrition which affects the blood is Diabetes. It prevents the sugar in the blood. Food does not nourish, though the appetite be good. Wasting and reduction in weight result. Large quantities of urine are passed. There is a sweetish odor from the skin which is sickening. A drawn, pinched expression are some of the symptoms. A medicine which relieves attacks of Diabetes and restores normal nutrition is Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy. With perfect nutrition the blood is properly enriched and strength and health return.

"It gives me pleasure to say that when I was given up to die from Diabetes I was advised to try Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy. I continued taking it until I became perfectly well." From letter of Rev. Alvin H. Morton, Sand Point, Idaho. All good druggists sell Warner's Diabetes Safe Remedy as well as all the other well-known Warner Remedies—the Kidney and Liver Remedy, the Nervine, the Rheumatism Remedy, etc. Write for a free sample Warner's Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 231, Rochester, N. NOW, IF WE ONLY HAD AN ELECTRIC GLOVE

(Jeremiah Creedon, an engineer on the B. & O., has invented an electric glove to be used by the police and women who are annoyed by mashers.—NEWS ITEM.)

By HANK.

If we possessed a pair of gloves to carry sixty volts,
You bet we'd hand a certain guy a bunch of lightning jolts.
And after when he brought his bill, with hope upon his face.
He'd take the hint and have it in an insulated case.

A parent with electric gloves could wield an awful slam.
And quickly stop desires to cop the oft forbidden jam.
And after she had turned the switch to make the current cease,
You'd notice Harold eat his meals from off the mantlepiece!

OPEN GAFFNEY HEARING UPON NASHUA CHARGE

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 22.—The startling charges of bribery brought against Frederick J. Gaffney of Nashua, who is believed to be the first of the four men "higher up" mentioned by Police Commissioner Gregg in his graft and vice campaign in Nashua, will be heard today by a special senatorial committee. The charges were preferred by Senator Preston.

The committee, consisting of Senators Prentiss and Blackwood, Democrats, and Senators Ilustress, Chalmers and Wallace, Republicans, will meet at 2:30 this afternoon. Sensational disclosures are expected, according to gossip about the capital today.

The names of the three other men alleged to be "higher up" whom Police Commissioner Gregg promised to make known soon, are no waggerly awaited. Conjecture as to whom they are is rife and there have been many guesses.

NEW EVIDENCE FOUND IN GIRL FORGER'S ROOM

The police today searched the rooms at No. 8 Dalton street, Back Bay, formerly occupied by Mrs. Alden Monilon, the girl forger, and also visited No. 36 Falmouth street in the hope of getting additional evidence against the girl.

Special officer Lyons and Sergeant Murphy of the Back Bay police station conducted the search and admitted that on Friday an additional charge might be made against the girl. They refused to state the nature of the charge.

At No. 8 Dalton street, a trunk belonging to Mrs. Monilon is held by Mrs. Amy Lawrence for room rent. The police examined the contents of this trunk today. It contained much clothing belonging to Mrs. Monilon. At No. 36 Falmouth street, another trunk is being held for room rent and this was also inspected by the police.

One of his achievements was the revamping of the great Mechanicville yard for classification of freight entering New England from the West.

Dr. Vandyke Writes to School Children of New Jersey

TRENTON, Jan. 22.—Dr. Henry Vandyke of Princeton has written to the children of the eighth grade of the public schools of New Jersey and expects an answer to his letter. The letter, along the lines of those written by Thomas A. Edison and Mrs. Grover Cleveland, was received by the pupils when they took the examinations for the first term. It follows:

My Dear Frankie—I have made a little story of the things that I have been doing and send it to you on a separate sheet. Now I want you to tell me what has happened to you, and whether you have grown in mind as well as in body.

Tell me what was the happiest day that you have had since we went to the picnic together last June—do you remember?

Tell me which book you like best of all that you have read, and why you like it.

Tell me whether you have made any new friends, and why you have chosen them.

Tell me if any of your studies is too hard for you, and what you are going to do about it.

Tell me if you think the town where you live is improving and whether you think you can do anything to help it.

Tell me what you want to be when you grow up.

Write to me as simply as if we were sitting side by side on a log beside a little river.

COLUMBIA LECTURER VAUDEVILLE ACTOR

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Louis K. Anspacher, playwright and Columbia University lecturer, is acting this week at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre in a vaudeville playlet. He has never acted before. He is appearing as Marshall Lefebvre in "The Washerwoman Duchess," in which Katryn Kidder, his wife, is the headliner. His wife had had five different men trying to play Lefebvre. Mrs. Anspacher tired of rehearsing with new actors, asked her husband, who had four weeks with nothing to do, to go on the stage with her.

Says Husband She "Reared and Wed" Has Deserted Her

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Mrs. Helen Buschor, forty-nine, tearfully told Judge Gemmill that she is a victim of the basest ingratitude. Then she pointed to Arthur Buschor, her husband, whom she had hailed into court for desertion.

"I adopted him when he was a baby one year old," she said. "I nursed him, sent him to school, gave him a good education, got him a good position and then I married him. Now he must be smitten with a younger woman, for he has left me."

The youthful husband had nothing to say.

"This woman has done everything a woman can do for you," said the judge, "though I think she made a mistake in marrying you." He continued the case.

TRY IT! SAYS SAGE TEA DARKENS AND BEAUTIFIES FADED, GRAY HAIR

Mixed with Sulphur Makes Hair Soft and Luxuriant and Removes Dandruff.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is coming in vogue again, says a well-known downtown druggist. It was used by our grandmothers' treatment and hundreds of women and men, too, are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the musy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is the most popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply dampen a soft brush or sponge with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this tonight, and by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, it removes dandruff; itching scalp and falling hair. Here, you gray-haired folks, get busy; look years younger.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR INDIGESTION, BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION

Better than castor oil, calomel or cathartics to cleanse your stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels. Harmless laxative for men, women and children.

Primitive folks did not need laxatives. They lived outdoors, ate plenty of fruit, and all of their food was coarse. We modern people are different. We exercise too little, eat little fruit, and our food is too fine, too rich.

We simply can't have our ten yards of bowels clogged up, liver choked with sour bile and stomach full of foul effete matter and feel well. It means that the food and waste retained in the stomach and thirty feet of bowels ferments—decays. The decay creates poisons, gases and acids, and those poisons are sucked into the blood through the very ducts intended to suck in the nutriment. Then we have sick headache, become dull, bilious, tongue coated, nervous, meals don't digest, and we feel miserable all over. So we must make our choice.

We must live like primitive folks, else we must take artificial means to move the excess bile and waste matter on and out of the system.

The safest, most harmless and effective stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator for men, women and children—is delicious Syrup of Figs, which doesn't irritate, gripe or weaken. Its effect is the effect of fruits. It is composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics. Don't think you are drugging yours if. Syrup of Figs can be constantly used without harm.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and see on the label that it is prepared by The California Fig Syrup Company. This is the only genuine—the old reliable. Refuse with contempt, the so-called Fig Syrup imitations sometimes offered to deceive you.

NIXON TO MEET GALLANT IN BIG 12 ROUND BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

BILLY NIXON, the rugged Cambridge featherweight, will try and prove that he is one of the best men of his weight in New England when he clashes with Gilbert Gallant in a twelve-round contest at Manchester, N. H., tonight. The bout has aroused a great deal of enthusiasm among the followers of the squared circle and a big crowd is sure to witness the festivities. Many "fans" are planning to make the trip to Manchester from this city this evening.

Nixon and Gallant are old and bitter rivals, and they may be relied upon to put up a stealing battle. The betting on the bout is even, as the rival ring men are evenly matched.

These two young men met at the old American A. C. in this city last Winter and gave a fine exhibition. When the smoke of battle had blown over, the odds were pretty even.

Gallant is stronger than Nixon, but the latter is a harder poncher and a cleverer boxer than the Chelsea boy. The men have agreed to make 133 pounds at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The winner will probably be matched to meet Steve Kennedy, of Lawrence in the near future.

FREDDY DUFFY, the clever Jamaica Plain boxer, will meet "Young" Abearn, the Brooklyn "Dancing Master," in a ten-round bout at North Adams tonight. Abearn will probably outweigh the local boy by three or four pounds, but the latter is confident that he will prove the winner. There will be no decision rendered by the referee.

* * *

THE St. Patrick's T. A. Society of Brockton will conduct an open amateur boxing tournament on Friday evening, January 31. Bouts will be held at 115, 125 and 135 pounds. This club has had several successful shows for the past year and artists this season, and has done more than its part in order to encourage the sport of boxing.

* * *

JACKEY M'FARLAND and Jack Britton have finally come to terms. These two brilliant "light-weights" have signed articles of agreement to meet in a ten-round contest in Madison Square Garden, New York, on February 7. The bout could be one of the most scientific affairs staged in this country in years, but we will not be a great deal of slugging, neither M'Farland nor Britton rely upon a punch in order to win their ring titles.

* * *

M'FARLEY will receive $6,000 as his end of the purse. He has been guaranteed this sum by Danny Morgan, manager of Britton, who will receive 50 per cent. of the money taken in at the gate.

RILEY'S COLUMN

JACK JOHNSON'S inducement to take an active or passive part in getting out of the dominion of Uncle Sam. The Big Ace never thought of fighting until he felt the iron bands chafe his wrists. A scrap with somebody or other across the big militarism would be a good excuse for Johnson to go abroad, if the Federal authorities would fall for that sort of an argument.

* * *

JOHNSON'S lawyers doubtless told Jack that an international match with Palzer might be a good enough excuse to set Johnson free to move as he pleases pending trial.

If he once landed abroad he could take a long chance on something or other happening to save him from a long term in prison.

* * *

THE Federal authorities arrested him once when he tried to go to Canada, ostensibly to fight, but he believes he might be able to work the Palzer match where the Canadic game failed—according to Johnson's press party private opinion. They rely on public sentiment to demand a pardon for the heavyweight title, and Johnson is willing. If, once aboard, he neglected to come back, Uncle Sam would have some hark making him appear in court, for, as far as we know, "white slavery" is not an extraditable offense. They don't frown so severely upon that species of crime across the water.

* * *

WHILE Johnson and Palzer are arguing over this affair the most logical contestant of the heavyweight championship—Luther McCarty—is beginning to lack real insurance through his manager. This is what William McCarney has to say about McCarty's intentions (the wording is McCarney's own):

Luther McCarty, world's heavyweight champion, will take Gunboat Smith or any other wally horse-guy that will step into the squared circle with him, but he will not be a party to any match that is in the least questionable. That is my opinion, and I will stand by it. Luther McCarty is a real, honest-to-goodness fighting man, and he will not be a party to any scheme that has the least appearance of shielding the title of champion of the world by the possibility of becoming better acquainted with the new champion.

I have received offers of bouts with heavyweights of no standing whatever, and they, of which, if accepted by us will not, Luther does not care. I believe that, while we like the class work, we will soon step it up, for Luther wants the boxing game and the limelight to be back in harness. However, he will not forsake the buckles and straps are strong enough to enable him to do his part in the game.

We shall go through the South, filling our time between Memphis and Atlanta, at which point he will be in Columbus, Ga., on the 22nd. McCarty will be twenty-one years old, and he is young, exhibiting his actions in the ring. We have selected no man for his opponent, in fact, we have never selected a man for Luther to box, except a man who was going to send to the public as a little nest boss.

Tom McMurer is now in communication with Wells relative to a championship bout at Indianapolis, Ind., on the 22nd. Tom is a most estimable old boy, and we have been acquainted with him for years. Mr. Wells is to be the next client of the big man, when Luther has not met. He will be behind Palzer in their fight on Madison Square until the bouts, with a chance here, and then to the rear for the rest.

Wells will take no set chances with McCarty and the latter represents the two fastest and cleverest heavyweights in the world should be a good affair.

* * *

THE secret of why various National League promoters have vainly sought William H. Locke, lately secretary of the Pittsburgh Pirates, as president of their respective clubs is out. Locke is willing to let his name do the managing. Charlie Hoole, who has been said to working for Horace Fogel these several years past, received a letter from one of the players the other day. He turned it over to Locke, the new president of the Phillies.

"What's it all about?" asked Locke. Doole told him.

"Oh, that's something for you to worry about," said Locke. You're manager of the club. You'll have to deal with the players yourself."

Locke, of course, is a successful baseball executive, and has been sought by several owners. But until he jumped into the Philadelphia job as a partial proposition, he said he would let him in on terms satisfactory to himself, he stayed out. They could not understand, probably, how a man could be a successful executive without loosing the manager act as well.

* * *

JESS WILLARD, who thinks he can beat Luther McCarty out of what right McCarty may have to the white heavyweight championship, is one of the wise ones who hopes Fred Fulton is to have a manager. He believes that all a manager is good for is to take one-half or more of what a fighter makes—which is too often true. A half-dozen handlers of scrappers tried to annex Willard as soon as he became eligible for a big fight, but he turned them all down. So the "brains" of pugilism call Willard a "bone-head."

TIGERS BATTLE HARVARD SEVEN HERE TONIGHT

The Lineup.

HARVARD.		PRINCETON.
Hoehn, lw		lw, Kaier
Cutler, c		c, Hillis
Hall, rw		rw, Hillis
Bingham, rd		rd, Minnick
Wilson, ld		ld, Minnick
Bigelow, g		g, Minnick

The strong Harvard hockey seven will clash with the Princeton Tigers in one of the most important college games of the season at the Boston Arena tonight. The contest is sure to be fast and interesting from start to finish and a big crowd is expected to turn out in order to witness the fray.

The Crimson team has been playing a dashing game during the past two weeks. It recently defeated the strong Toronto University septet and followed up this triumph by decisively vanquishing the team from Cornell last Saturday night.

Princeton has enjoyed a remarkable winning career since the season opened, while the Harvard players in the last two weeks have come along at such a pace that many believe they are strong enough to cage the Tigers' menace.

Had Harvard been able to present its full strength against Princeton, many could see nothing but a victory for the men from across the Charles. However, in the loss of Bill Claflin, Harvard suffers severely. Although not the finest overseer in the game he has displayed hockey brains and aggressive tactics to such a marked degree that he is a very necessary cog in the Harvard machine.

YALE MEETS HARVARD ON TRACK MAY 17

It is feared that the accident may prevent the latter from stroking the crew this year.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—After a struggle lasting nearly two hours and a half, Henry Wirth, lightweight champion, and Johnny Billiter of Toledo left the mat last night with neither man the victor in their match for the lightweight title. O'Rourke Brings Suit Against London "Boxing"

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The sporting fraternity here is teeming with excitement today concerning promised sensational revelations in a libel suit which Tom O'Rourke, the New York boxing manager, is bringing against the proprietors of a weekly paper known as Boxing, published here.

The matter came up before high courts. On application of O'Rourke's counsel to have the trial postponed until February 11, as O'Rourke and his witnesses couldn't get here until then, the court agreed to postponement.

The libel complained of charged O'Rourke with discreditable practices in connection with various big boxing contests promoted by him in the U. S. A. and said he made bets upon foregone conclusions and arranged contests, that he is dishonest in his methods of conducting contests, and finally that he is a man who would sacrifice persons whom he was acting for in order to make money by betting on the other side.

O'Rourke in answer, denying the charges, said that if true they meant he was a disreputable character who would not be tolerated amongst sporting men. In their particulars the defendants say the words complained of are true in substance and fact and that they are fair comment on matters of public interest.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Kali Mora, regarded as the greatest wrestler ever developed in India and the superior of Gama, has been signed by Promoter George V. Tuohey to meet Zbyszko in a match to a finish in Mechanics Building, Boston, on Wednesday, February 12.

To get the match, Tuohey had to hustle to Kansas City, where he was able to sew up contracts so as to secure Mora, whose record indicates that he resembles Mahmout in style and build.

"The match should equal, if not surpass, that between Lurich and Lemle," said Tuohey just before he started East.

MOTOR TRUCK MAKERS EXHIBIT 'FOOL PROOF' CARS AT BIG SHOW

By J. C. KERRISON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The truck maker is profiting by the mistakes of the builder of pleasure cars. On every side at the Madison Square Garden and the Grand Central Palace display there is evidence of an attempt to make the motor truck fool-proof. The manufacturers realize that speed is the most expensive proposition they have to deal with, for it wears out tires and shakes the power plant to pieces. So, upon nearly all of the power wagons that are displayed there is an automatic governing device that holds the speed down to twenty or less miles per hour.

Another striking feature is the effort to do away with the idling of trucks and driver, by means of innumerable dumping and unloading devices. Some of the manufacturers have even provided two or three bodies to each chassis so that one body may be removed and loaded while the chassis is carrying another loaded body. Power hoists, hand hoists and roller beds for bodies are seen in a variety of designs at the show.

The Studebaker Corporation has a noteworthy display at the Grand Central Palace. It signalizes the entrance of this concern into the field of gasoline truck builders.

A new departure in this line is a three-ton truck in chassis form. The features are an internal gear drive, four speeds, three sets of brakes, long stroke motor and a unit system which enables any of the main assemblies to be lifted out of place and a substitute installed on short notice.

This truck is the forerunner of a complete series of similar ones, ranging from the delivery wagon to the six-ton vehicle. These trucks were designed by Albert T. Mals.

Make Truck Exhibit.

Henry T. Myers, who today assumed charge as manager of the Studebaker Corporation's wholesale branch in New England, is here with the truck exhibit and is getting in touch with the personnel of the Studebaker selling organization in New England. Mr. Myers, a Kentuckian by birth, is a veteran of the automobile industry. He comes to Boston from South Bend, Ind., where he has had charge of the Studebaker branch. Mr. Myers was the confidential representative of the Studebaker sales department in Detroit.

His assignment to the Boston branch brings him back to many old associations. He was one of the first graduates of the Harvard school of business administration and formed the business school club, which has become a factor in the undergraduate life.

Joe Donovan, of the Donovan Motor Company, retail agents of the Studebaker in Boston, is also here looking over the exhibit. He will handle the truck line as well as the pleasure car.

The feature of the Packard exhibit is a truck fitted with a special type of body, which eliminates the solid platform crib usually fitted to the commercial truck for hauling kegs of beer. In the construction of this body two outer and inner beams are used, the same as an ordinary horse-drawn body. This style of body obviates the necessity of replacing side and tail gates and facilitates in loading as well as unloading.

The Federal Motor Truck Company, which is represented in Boston by Whitten-Gilmore, the distributors of the Chalmers, are exhibiting in the Garden. In addition to the regular models this company is showing a combination chemical wagon for city fire departments. The Federal fire wagon is sturdy and speedy. It is thoroughly equipped with hose, ladders, chemicals, electric lights and other features.

Boston Men Present.

The Knox-Martin tractor is the feature of the Knox exhibit. This machine is designed particularly for transporting heavy loads, and is very popular with lumbermen and coal merchants.

The Pope-Hartford display includes, in addition to the models for general service, two good examples of the company's product of the fire-department vehicle. This company has made a specialty of this class of truck. Manager Fred Lucas, of the Boston branch, is on the job here receiving New England visitors to his company's display.

The small merchant, such as the butcher, baker and florist, whose hauls are quick and frequent, views with favor the Hupp Motor Car Company's exhibit. The Hupmobile delivery cars have bodies of the closed canvas sided type. Manager Shutt of the H. J. Koehler S. G. Company, Boston, distributors of this car, is at the exhibit and is enthusiastic over the Hupmobile line. He is planning a big selling campaign for Greater Boston.

The International Motor Company is showing the Mack, Saurer and Hewett trucks. There is one big wagon in the display that is fitted up for the present like a small office. It has a desk, a filing cabinet and a couple of chairs in it. There is also the wagon of the New York Telephone Company, 1 piece of fire apparatus, a mailing and pay wagon, a dump truck and a stripped chassis. This is one of the largest exhibits at the show. Manager William Britton, of the Boston branch, who put the International Motor Company's business on such a strong footing in this territory, is here at the show.

Manager Fred Bradfield of the Velie Boston branch, and "Lin" McKee, who has charge of the truck department, are here with a number of New England merchants who went to look over the Velie display. The Velie truck chassis is a complete unit in itself, to which may be attached any standard, optional or special body. The weight of the three-ton chassis is 6,500 pounds, the weight of the two-ton is 5,550 pounds, and the regular stake body weighs approximately 1,000 pounds. The Velie motor is especially designed for road work. The long stroke and smaller bore gives it a maximum pulling power at slow speed. The bearings are unusually heavy, and in fact the motor itself weighs twenty pounds more than the average motor of the same size. A sealed governor guards against depreciation, even under the most adverse conditions.

Delivery Types.

The Buick Motor Company is showing for the first time a four-cylinder delivery wagon and truck. Harry Noyes, the New England distributor, is enthusiastic over this new product of the Buick Company. He says his concern has made every effort to solve the delivery problem and that in this new light delivery car it has the right sort of a truck.

The Buick has been built for endurance and all the models designed so that the car can be operated at a nominal cost. It requires no more intelligence to handle this truck than is necessary with an ordinary horse-drawn wagon. The new truck is built on a special chassis and must not be confused with the pleasure car in any way.

The power plant and transmission have been especially devised for this type of truck. It has a governing device which keeps the truck down to twenty miles an hour, and the adjustments cannot be disturbed without breaking the lead seal. The motor and transmission are set on a special frame, which in turn is mounted on the main frame by the three-point suspension method. The motor is so accessible that it can be removed in twenty minutes without disturbing any other part of the truck. This light delivery wagon has a capacity of 1,500 pounds. It has the left-hand drive and centre control.

CHING LING FOO TO JOIN FOLLIES

There will be a new feature in "Ziegfeld Follies" at the Colonial Theatre next week. Mr. Ziegfeld will add to the organization Ching Ling Foo and his company of fourteen Oriental entertainers. Mr. Foo and his troupe will present a unique and entirely distinct performance. The program for his local engagement will include in addition to his own mystifying feats, the appearance of his daughter, Miss Chee Toy, whose rendition of American songs give promise of being a sensation.

The big rise in the copper warrants market in London was elevating to share prices here. In the local market Butte & Superior was up 1¼ at the opening, and a number of other issues made fractional gains.

There was a good demand for Shattuck-Arizona and a dispatch received by Paine, Webber & Co. from Duluth read: "It is reported officially that Shattuck-Arizona has encountered a considerable body of ore on the 300-foot level which runs 40 per cent. copper with high silver values."

At the end of the first hour Hancock was up 2 points and Granby, Isle Royale, North Butte, Lake, Mayflower and American Zinc were fractionally higher, while Butte & Superior was holding its gain.

The New York market was also strong.

The New York sub-treasury gained $1,000 from banks yesterday and since Friday has gained $5,352,000.

Heavy buying in the cotton market there at the opening advanced prices 8 to 16 points. The list was strong. After the call further gains were made through covering by shorts. Futures and spot in Liverpool were steady.

Prices Ascend in New York.

Prices showed an ascension trend when the New York market opened. The leaders all sold higher. Gains were fractional, but were general. Coppers were stronger. In trading circles the impression appears to be that liquidation is over for a time and that the market has been heavily oversold. The shorts were more or less nervous and inclined to seek cover this morning, as was the case yesterday. Not much activity is looked for in the market, however, until there is some new outside development of importance. A decision on the Minnesota rate case would have market effect.

The underlying tone was better when the market opened and sentiment seemed more optimistic. At the start interest was chiefly centred upon American Tobacco, which was still climbing. This issue opened at 289 and immediately went to 290, representing a four point gain. This stock has gained nearly ten points since Monday, when it closed at 280½.

There was much activity in Steel common, which advanced ⅝ to 64⅞. Amalgamated rose ¼ to 74¼, and a gain of ¾ was made in American Smelting.

The list was strong. Among the other gains were Union Pacific ½, Southern Pacific ¼, Reading ½, Northern Pacific ½, St. Paul 1, American Sugar ¼, Utah Copper ⅜, Rock Island ⅜, Pennsylvania ¼, Missouri Pacific ⅛, Erie ¼, Erie preferred ⅞, and Atchison ¼. Canadian Pacific opened ⅝ off, but recovered most of the loss.

The Curb was firm.

Americans were strong in London.

Big Copper Rise in London.

In the London copper metal market quotations showed a skyward tendency at the opening, spot rising £1 10 s and futures going up £1 8s 9d. It is laconically cabled "market strong."

It is reported that there was a second-hand sale of electrolytic in New York yesterday for 15⅝ cents cash. This transaction took place on a day when the big American producers were holding or raising their London price to 16½ cents a pound.

There is not much buying of the metal at present either in this country or Europe.

Financial News in Brief.

The total operating revenue of Lehigh Valley increased $345,230 in December and $2,712,682 for the last half of 1912.

According to advance figures from the Interstate Commerce Commission the total revenues of steam roads in this country increased $30,234,086 in November compared with returns for the same 1911 month. Total expenses increased $18,482,057.

It is expected in financial circles that the next bond issue of New York city will be the largest in its history, or between $70,000,000 and $75,000,000. The last flotation was $65,000,000. With the most recent issue of 4¼s selling under par it is generally believed that the Gaynor administration will be forced to raise the interest rate to 4½ per cent.

It is said at Washington that the majority of the House Ways and Means Committee are in favor of "free meats" and that there is also a decided trend towards putting cattle on the free list.

President Ripley of the Atchison was interviewed in San Francisco and said: "The buyer of railroad stocks is a gambler, taking chances on the 'whims' of dozens of legislative and rate-making bodies. There isn't much in this country yet in the way of railroads. It is almost true that we have imitation railroads. Our preset properties are not constructed to stand the strain of future requirements."

Officers of the American Sugar Refining Company deny that that corporation is selling its stock in beet sugar concerns. Regarding the big company's ownership, it is said: "In 1911, out of sixty-four factories producing sugar from beets and having an estimated capacity of 48,000 tons of beets a day, the American had an interest in thirty-three plants, with an aggregate of 26,500 tons a day."

There are said to be outstanding short contracts for more than 200,000 shares of United States Steel.

Thompson, Towle & Co. quote a high official of the Lackawanna road as saying: "Aside from what the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul contemplates, also electrification of the New Haven lines between Stafford and New Haven, and some similar work which the company has in contemplation in the vicinity of Boston, I have no knowledge of any extensive work in the electrification line which is in contemplation in the near future."

4 BLACKMAILERS TRAPPED AS VICTIM PAYS OVER MONEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—As a result of a police trick, four alleged blackmailers were neatly trapped today as their prospective victim handed over $40 as first payment of $500 that had been demanded of him.

The victim of theb lackmail plot was Francisco Cuorno, a foreman on the Long Island Railroad, who lives at No. 2383 Fulton street, East New York. Following a series of threatening letters, the four-story tenement in which Couirno lives was partially destroyed by a bomb last week. A fellow workman advised Cuorno to pay the money. Through this arrangement the other men were caught.

MAYOR HEARS CHARGE IN FIGHT TO REMOVE LYNN HEALTH BOARD

Mayor Newhall of Lynn today heard the charges brought against the Board of Health by Timothy O'Leary and Ernest Gingras on behalf of Mrs. John Gaguon, who, with her baby, is a smallpox victim at the Swampscott pesthouse.

Previous to listening to the demand that the Board be removed the Mayor was informed by Chairman Ward of the Health Board that a guard had been stationed over the stricken woman and child.

A charge of inefficiency in caring for the mother and baby is the foundation of the fight to remove the health officers.

CEMENT BURIAL VAULT

The construction of the arched top is the strongest that can be devised. Sealed with clear cement, it becomes a solid piece of masonry, impervious to air and moisture.

We guarantee it can be disinterred at any time without disturbing the remains. The body simply lies in an airtight receptacle forever. It costs but little more than a pine box, and is much less expensive than hardwood, steel or brick.

Insist upon having it for your loved ones, and stay and see it sealed.

$20 Covers all cost of delivering and sealing in any cemetery in Boston or suburban districts. Order from your undertaker or direct from us.

Dogs and Girls Make a Very Poor Combination

A Brief Description of One Modern Scene in a Big City.

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

Here is a description of what happened on a busy city corner.

A young girl of about eighteen was walking uptown, leading a bulldog fastened to a chain. Another young girl was walking downtown, leading a fox terrier, also on a chain.

These girls were dressed to attract as much attention as possible, and in each case the dog was added as an extra means of advertising—increasing the conspicuousness of the young women, whom good taste should have kept off that crowded street while "airing" their dogs.

Conspicuous as they were, these girls were very demure and scarcely to be noticed, compared with the very tall girl dressed in bright purple, hurrying from the north with two Chinese dogs prancing in front of her, not held by a chain in her hand, but chained together in such a fashion as to enable them to walk three feet from each other.

These Chinese dogs, "chows" so called, with yellowish fur, black tongues, and ears erect, spraddling all over the sidewalk, dragging the chain that fastened them into the legs of respectable passersby, were a very excellent and annoying advertisement of the vanity and lack of common sense of the young woman that owned and followed them.

She was nearly six feet tall. Besides the two dogs that walked ahead of her, she had the entire hide of a blue fox tied around her neck—head, tail and paws dangling. She had a bright blue hat above her purple dress, and it was easy to see that she felt very proud of herself indeed, with one dead animal tied around her neck and two live animals dancing before her.

This galaxy of foolish young women and villainous, out-of-place dogs all met in a magnificent jumble on the corner.

There was a mixture of fox terrier, bulldog and Chinese "chow" that lasted for a minute or two.

Several passersby and one policeman were kept busy; traffic was interrupted, and then the dogs were sorted out, and went off with their respective owners.

The girl that owned the bulldog, and had him chained, told the girl with the two "chows" running loose that she ought to be ashamed of herself. The girl that had the fox terrier chained looked scornfully at both the other two girls, and at the other three dogs.

And they went their several ways—each of the women quite contented with herself, and each quite thoroughly pitied by whatever there was of common sense in the crowd that looked on.

It ought to be possible for the fathers and mothers of these girls to identify them from this description. Each when she went home probably told what had happened, putting the blame upon the other dogs and girls, and the praise to herself.

We wish to say to the young women, and to their fathers and mothers, that in thus parading themselves in a crowded street, dragging dogs with them, unnecessarily, they show lack of modesty and good taste.

The parents that permit it, or encourage it, show that they know little.

We may add that each of those dogs probably carried about with him not fewer than five hundred thousand disease germs.

A nice spectacle in an age of alleged civilization—three young women, parading on the most crowded street of a big city, with four useless, hideous, disease-gathering and spreading animals to keep them company.

Too much indulgence, too little common sense, is one trouble with the American girls of this day—and their parents ought to know it.

If "Loyal Ulster" Wants to Bleed and Suffer—Let Her.

It Is About Her Turn to Do Some of the Suffering. The Rest of Ireland Has Had More Than a Fair Share.

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

With a majority of one hundred and ten in its favor, the Liberal government of Great Britain passed the Home Rule bill last Thursday.

This doesn't mean anything except THE SIMPLEST JUSTICE.

The English, at least, after centuries of oppression and brutality, mitigated toward the end by a liberal land purchase act, have given to Ireland the minimum of justice and decent treatment.

Thanks to the fighting character of the Irish, thanks to the noble men, the real statesmen, the brilliant orators sent to the House of Commons from Ireland, the victory has come at last.

The Englishmen concerned in this tardy administration of justice to be congratulated. The people of Ireland who helped in the fight, their money, their blood or their talent, deserve the thanks of all people that believe in freedom.

There is one piping, shrill, discordant note, which comes from "Loyal Ulster."

The Unionist leader, Law, representing that particular kind of radicalism which wants justice for itself and not for others, predicts that blood will be shed in Ulster, and says "the men of Ulster are willing to give up their lives for the cause."

If they WANT to bleed, let them try it for a while. If they want to give up their lives, let them see whether they are really in earnest about it.

It is pretty nearly time for the Protestants of Ulster to take their dose of government by coercion and against their will.

For centuries they have ruled Ireland as a minority. Let them now submit and be governed by the majority—or let them be put to the test, and see to what extent they are really willing "to give up their lives."

As a matter of fact, the landlords of Ulster, the sweatshop owners that work the industries there, the sanctimonious, Catholic-hating Protestants will talk and Mr. Law will talk for them. And nothing more will be heard about it. They won't fight.

Home Rule in Ireland will mean real developments of the Irish kingdom, development of industry, working free from any oppressive influences of the past.

For a great body of people, powerful, vigorous remnants of the ancient Celtic race once spread from the East to the West in Europe, a new day is born, a new opportunity.

Dorothy Dix's Article —ON— How to Choose a Husband—Girls Should Inspect Suitor's Fathers, as Sauce for the Goose Is Sauce for the Gander

By DOROTHY DIX.

THE treasurer of the Fathers and Mothers' Club of Boston has been handing out some good advice to young men about how to pick out a wife. Among other things, she tells the Boston swain that before he pops the question to go and take a good long squint at the girl's mother, for as mother is, even so will daughter be when she attains mother's age.

This is wise counsel that every young man would do well to heed, but what is sauce for the goose is also sauce for the gander, and before a girl says "yes" to the youth who asks her to trust her life and happiness to his keeping, it would pay her to make a pilgrimage to his home, and try to get a line upon his father.

Undeniably a girl is pretty sure to grow more and more like her mother as she grows older. Also as her character hardens the early impressions come out, and she unconsciously voices the prejudices and views that were bred in her, and understands mother's way of housekeeping, and mother's extravagance or thrift, and gives a living exhibition in her own case of how mother used to treat father.

But heredity and early impressions are not exclusive feminine peculiarities. The little boy is molded just as much by what he sees and hears as the little girl is, and as he grows older he follows in his father's footsteps just as much as the girl follows in her mother's.

Occasionally there is a reversion from type, instead of a reversion to type. I have known cases of where girls, horrified at their mother's shrewish tempers and tongues, have controlled their own with such an iron hand that they became patterns of patience and forbearance, or where the daughters of a slovenly mother were so disgusted with her laziness and disorder that they made themselves model housewives.

Also I have heard a man, whose father was boorish and selfish, say that when he was a child it used to break his heart to hear his father speak brutally to his mother, and to notice how her eyes would fill up with tears, and she would wince as at a blow, and that he made up his mind then that if he ever married that he would be tender and gentle to his wife.

These cases, however, are the exceptions that prove the rule, and generally speaking, both men and women carry into their own homes the ideals of married life, whether high or low, to which they were accustomed in their childhood and youth. Therefore, just as a man can safely count on a girl making the kind of a wife her mother makes, so a girl may count on a man making the sort of a husband that his father is.

And this being true, every girl who values her own happiness should make a visit in her prospective husband's home before she finally commits herself.

If she finds that her sweetheart's father is still a lover after a quarter of a century or more of matrimony; if she sees that he treats his wife with gentle courtesy and consideration; if she observes that he brings his wife a flower, or pulls out her chair for her at the table, or that he is interested in what she is doing, then if the girl knows a good thing when she sees it, she will grab up that man's son and rush with him to the nearest preacher before some other woman prize-hunter gets a chance to get him away from her.

No matter what faults he may have, any man who has been raised by that sort of a father, who has had that sort of an example of how to treat a wife before his eyes all his life, who has had respect, and chivalry, and tenderness for women bred into his very bones, will make the kind of a husband who will make his wife's heart sing for joy every day she lives. It will be habit with that man to treat his wife right, because he has always seen his mother treated right, and we go the way we've been brought up to go because it's the line of the least resistance.

But suppose the girl observes that when her father-in-law-elect is due to come home of an evening that his wife begins to show signs of nervous tension; suppose when he does come he grunts an inarticulate greeting to everybody else's cheery salutation; suppose conversation dies down, and laughter is hushed, and the children go on tip-toe, and a funeral silence takes the place of the former chatter.

Suppose father never speaks at the table except to find fault with the food; suppose he flies into rages and says insulting things to his wife, and disagreeable ones to the children; suppose she hears him rowing over the bills and asking her wife what she did with that quarter he gave her last week; suppose he sneers at women and shows that he thinks that they are mere slaves invented for the amusement and service of man.

Suppose the girl gets this life-size portrait of the father of the man she is considering marrying, what shall she do?

Let her take the tip as to the kind of a husband the son would make, and break her engagement though she were on the very steps of the altar. The man who has seen his mother insulted all of his life will feel he has a perfect right to insult his own wife. He who has watched his mother bullied and brow-beaten will bully and brow-beat any woman in his power, also. The son of a tight wad, and the man who has been reared to see his father make a doormat of his mother will also make one of his wife when he gets her.

Of course, there is an occasional exception to this rule, but like father like son is a safe proposition in matrimony, and a wise girl will pick out her father-in-law first. If he's all right she needn't be afraid to trust his son.

From the Babies' Point of View

By PERCY SHAW

WHILE our sisters and mothers
Are working to show
Our fathers and brothers
How little they know,
I would like to make clear,
As worthy of note,
That the time's about near
For us babies to vote.

Long gone by are the days
When we can be coaxed,
Or in old-fashioned ways
Be wheedled and hoaxed.
Away with the bottle!
And down with the crib!
Let us hasten to throttle
The go-cart and bib!

We must marshal our fights
As an organized band;
We must war for our rights
By sea and by land.
No more shall the nation,
Beheld us supine;
As kings of creation
We sweep into line.

There is only one thorn
That gives us concern,
For, although we were born
With power to discern,
Yet the sad fact is here,
When'ev'er we speak out
Not a soul seems quite clear
Just what it's about.
